What of U. S. Workmen? Harvard's New President More Work, Better Times Changes Come Slowly —By Arthur Brisbane—

WASHINGTON, May 11—Great Britain "gives approval to the tariff armistice." The assumption is that United States tariffs are to be lowered and everybody made happy "by ending economic warfare among nations."

Ending economic warfare sounds pleasant. But what about the international differences in wages and manufacturing costs and different standards of living?

Tearing down tariff walls to obligate foreign workmen and manufacturers that need our markets, and at the same time "revising the war debts" to oblige nations that borrowed from us, would be pleasant for foreigners, less pleasant for Americans.

This country feels that a good worker is entitled to a decent home, automobile, education for his children, radio, bathtub and reasonable leisure.

He cannot have that if he must compete in wages with Asiatics or the Europeans getting 25 cents to one dollar a day. Americans should buy from American workers, spend the money in the United States, where they get it. He who advocates bringing down the tariff, to put American workers on a par with 25-cent workers in Asia or one dollar workers in Europe, is not a friend of the United States, its prosperity or its working people.

Ray Brennan, of the Associated Press, gives encouraging instances of jobs and wages increasing.

Going north, yesterday, through Virginia, you learn that the Planters Nut and Chocolate Co., of Suffolk, announces wage increases of 20 per cent.

At Commerce, Ga., the National Manufacturing Co. calls several hundred men back to work and begins operating mills day and night.

Harvard University shows wisdom in selecting for President, as successor to its distinguished President Lowell, one of the university's faculty, Prof. James Bryant Conant.

The new president of Harvard has taught organic chemistry, which means that he has chosen a modern subject, calling for a mind willing to accept new facts and ideas.

Prof. Conant, one of the youngest of Harvard's presidents, is only 40, old enough to inspire respect in the students, young enough to understand their mental processes and sympathize with their mistakes as well as their ambitions.

Prof. Conant's photograph shows strong character and a sense of humor that will help him to deal with young gentlemen whose present conceit is sometimes an excellent sign, since conceit in youth is often a prelude to real ambition realized later.

Ronsard, Shakespeare and many others knew that mention by them conferred immortality. Newton and Napoleon when young had no doubt of their own great powers. Don't be hard on youth for vanity. Direct it.

Mr. Owen D. Young and Mr. Gerard Swope, who have worked hard during the depression on the problem of providing new jobs and arranging to make existing jobs go as far as possible, have done better than merely "divide jobs" in connection with General Electric, which they manage.

Mr. Walter J. Daily, of General Electric's refrigerating department, announces:

"All General Electric plants manufacturing refrigerators are running on 24-hour basis. Shipments of refrigerators have reached 100 full cars daily. The number of factory employes has been doubled since January 1, and increased by 40 per cent since the end of the bank holiday."

It is also announced that the demand for factory products is in excess of capacity to produce.

Regardless of that pleasant condition, General Electric shows intelligence by beginning an intensive advertising campaign in daily newspapers, on the theory that when you have a good thing you should make the most of it.

General Motors, which produces "Frigidaire," and other manufacturers of electric refrigerators also furnish reports of increasing sales and employment.

The electric refrigerator, an "unsatisfactory experiment" only a little while ago, is now perfected. Enough current to supply one electric bulb will keep your electric icebox going.

Changes come slowly, for human beings find it hard to abandon beliefs and customs drilled into them through centuries. Poor Gandhi, now starving himself, will pass like a shadow and India will remain

Troops Guard Maine Firebug From Mob

Ellsworth, Me., May 11 (AP)—Norman Moore, 25, said by authorities to have signed a confession that he set the fire Sunday night which caused $2,000,000 damage and made 400 homeless, was held prisoner by the National Guard today.

Moore was being held under military surveillance in the county jail while crowds milled about angrily outside. A detail of guardsmen was stationed about the building to protect the prisoner against possible violence.

When Moore was arrested early today he said, "something in my head led me to do this."

He told authorities he had been a spectator at a fire which destroyed a vacant factory here about a week before Sunday night's conflagration and had enjoyed watching the flames and seeing the fire apparatus.

TOLD HOW HE SET FIRE

Moore, charged with arson, was to be arraigned late today or to morrow.

Officials said Moore told them he had gone to the Morang-Robinson storehouse in which the fire originated several times Sunday afternoon.

He returned that night about nine and set fire to a pile of excelsior in the basement.

Then he went to F. C. Scott's stationery shop, less than two blocks away, where he tarried until the fire alarm was sounded. Then he went to his room above Tracey's restaurant, where he was employed as a dishwasher.

HELPED HIS VICTIMS

Later, when it became apparent the restaurant was doomed, he assisted his employer in removing part of the furnishings from the building. He lingered about the city, lending aid here and there to householders struggling to save whatever they could from their homes.

Moore said he left town Monday and returned for a short time that afternoon to view the destruction he had wrought.

The remainder of the time, he said, he had been working in Hancock. Suspicion was directed against him early Monday morning, when Sheriff Hodgkins learned he was missing from his home. The sheriff's department had been seeking him ever since.

Moore, one of a family of several children, is a man of large physique and had a reputation as an amateur wrestler. For several summers he had traveled about the state with carnivals.

Burglar in Jail Invents Lock

The Burglars' Union began picketing state prison today when word leaked out through Warden Hogsett that a burglar serving a three-year sentence there has just invented and patented a burglar-proof combination lock.

Who nthe inventor gets out of prison he may earn an honest fortune as a result of his dishonest experiences tampering with locks. Deputy Warden Godendorf encouraged the inventor, whose identity is not disclosed, and a lawyer patented the device after expert locksmiths had proclaimed it an improvement over many now on the market.

BIG U. S. JOB FOR CURLEY REPORTED

Washington Rumor Says It Might Be on the Tennessee Job

Washington buzzed with a report today that Mayor Curley, who declined the Polish ambassadorship, is about to receive appointment to a high federal position that will keep him in the United States.

Reports from the capital indicated President Roosevelt might name the mayor to some executive position in connection with the gigantic reclamation projects the White House has in view, possibly the Tennessee Valley job.

The appointment was expected momentarily. Although Curley denied knowing anything about it, Mayor Curley is said to have been consulted and expressed his willingness to take the post.

His resignation as Boston's mayor, according to the Washington gossip, may be expected momentarily.

Mayor Curley was the first nominee to an ambassadorship ever to decline the post. Since his return from Italy, where he went on a visit to the White House just before Easter, when he expressed to President Roosevelt his desire to remain at Boston's helm rather than go abroad, there has been recurring report that he would be offered a high federal position.

Such a position would bring his valued services into the fold of the administration and at the same time keep him in the United States, where, he believes, it is his duty to remain until economic conditions adjust themselves more nearly to a normal basis.

Italian Navy Man Executed as Spy

Rome, May 11 (AP)—Ugo Travagalla, a warrant officer in the Italian navy, was executed by a firing squad today for disclosing naval plans to a foreign power, and his accomplice, Camilla Agiardi, beautiful Italo-French woman, was granted a stay of 24 hours while the King considers her application for mercy.

Both were sentenced to death after a secret trial that ended last night. It is reported there was another accomplice, whose fate was not revealed.

Rainey's Absence Delays Farm Bill

Washington, May 11 (AP)—Rep. Byrns, Democratic leader, said today the absence from the city of Speaker Rainey will delay sending the farm relief-inflation bill to the White House until tomorrow.

The Speaker, who must sign the bill before Vice President Garner and President Roosevelt may affix their signatures, was delayed in Columbus, Ohio, by weather conditions which prevented his flight back to the capital.

New York, May 11 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Eliza Blodgett, 93, widow of J. Jarrett Blodgett, of Boston, and for years prominent in diocesan (R.C.) parochial work of the Episcopal church in New York, died today. Her father, John Hinman Sherwood, founded the Fifth Ave. Bank in New York city.

LINDY KIDNAP NAMES TOLD BY MEANS

Says the Flier Himself Was Real Object of Abductors

Washington, May 11 (NIS)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh himself, and not his son, was the real quarry of the men who kidnaped his baby, Gaston B. Means told a jury today.

Testifying in his own behalf in his trial for conspiring to swindle Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean out of an additional $35,000 after muicting her of $104,000 on promises to recover the baby, Means said the kidnapers' plans went wrong and they never had any intention of taking the baby.

Means, whose bizarre career has covered a wide range of criminal activities, gave a crowded courtroom some thrills today by asserting under oath that he knew who kidnaped the Lindbergh child the cause of its death, and where all the money that figured in the transaction went.

FENTON AND HENDERSON

The first two names Means brought into his long narrative after his attorney told him to tell the court "the whole story," were those of Irving Fenton, a man whom he said he first met while he was in Atlanta Penitentiary, and Wellington Henderson. Henderson, he said, was a man he was seeking in his investigation work in connection with Communist activities of the Third Internationale.

Means said Fenton told him in "Larry Jones' " place in West Broadway, New York, on Feb. 18 last year, two weeks before the kidnaping, that he and some others were

R. I. BOMBER IS HUNTED HERE

A close watch on Boston cleaning and dyeing establishments was instituted by police today as Providence and local officers searched here for at least one man believed to be implicated in the dynamiting of the Arcade Building, in Providence yesterday.

Inspectore William Gouiston and Benjamin Goodman of the headquarters racket squad were assigned to assist the two Providence officers.

The visiting police, who arrived at headquarters by automobile, refused to make public the identity of their quarry. The Providence dynamiting, according to police, was in connection with a cleansers' and dyers' war.

A Dangerous Precedent

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S frank talks with the American people are admirable and valuable as long as they are FRANK and adhere strictly to FACTS.

It is hardly frank, however, to declare and himself to decide that it is constitutional for the Congress to bestow upon the President the powers exclusively conferred by the Constitution upon the Congress itself.

Far greater authorities on constitutional law than President Roosevelt very positively assert that the Congress cannot legally divest itself of the powers conferred upon it by the Constitution.

Daniel Webster said:

"The most perfect and absolute good faith in regard to every stipulation in it (the Constitution) is indispensable to its preservation. Every attempt to accomplish even the best purpose, every attempt to grasp that which is regarded as an immediate good, in violation of these stipulations, is full of dangers to the whole Constitution."

And continuing in the same vein, he declared:

"I am not partly for the Constitution and partly against it; I am wholly for it, for it altogether, for it as it is, and for the exercise, when occasion requires, of all its just powers, as they have heretofore been exercised by Washington, and the great men who have followed him in its administration . . . I am committed against any and every derangement of the powers of the several departments of the government, against any derogation from the constitutional authority of Congress, and especially against all extension of executive power."

* * *

THIS attitude of undeviating support of the Constitution is reflected in an unbroken chain of great decisions by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Take for example the dictum of the court in the leading case of Kilbourn v. Thompson:

"It is believed," said the court, "to be one of

Eggs for Dog Land Owner in Court

Clinton, May 11 (AP)—Clinton police today became acquainted with a new cause of domestic strife when Mrs. Albert Votour caused the arrest of her husband for assault and battery.

It seems her husband usually has two eggs for breakfast. Today he thought one of his dogs needed nourishment so he conceived the idea of giving the animal a raw egg for breakfast. Mrs. Votour protested. The assault followed. He will be arraigned by district court tomorrow.

Somerville Judge Drops Overtime Case

Calling the case "small potatoes," Judge Sturtevant in Somerville court today discharged Frederick Miller, a store manager, arraigned for violating the labor laws by working three girls beyond the hours posted in the store. Miller said one of the girls didn't even work for him and the other two were sorting budget papers six minutes after the closing time, when Norman O. Durfee of the State Department of Labor and Industry walked in.

Fatal Malden Auto Crash Under Probe

Capt. John H. Alward of the Malden police admitted today that an investigation is in progress into the automobile accident which early yesterday caused fatal injuries to Mrs. Nellie M. Grimes, 37, of 58 Russell st. The auto in which she was riding with her brother, Patrolman Francis J. Downing, at the wheel, hit a truck. No action, Alward said, will be taken until after funeral services for Mrs. Grimes tomorrow.

STOCKS SOAR TO NEW HIGHS

New York, May 11 (AP)—Stocks and principal staples were swept up to new highs for the recovery on the crest of another huge buying wave today.

Trading in the share market hit the feverish pace of last week, with the ticker falling in arrears of transactions.

Extreme gains ranged from 1 to more than $5 a share in many issues. While the advance was frequently checked by profit-taking prices were around the day's best by mid-afternoon, with rails taking the lead.

Cotton jumped about $1 a bale to a new high level since September, lost nearly half its gain, then recovered to around the day's top levels.

The monthly government crop report prompted a fever of buying in the wheat market at Chicago, sending futures up 2 to to 3 cents. Other grains were strong.

This tendency was higher in the smaller staple markets at New York, with sugar, yesterday's soft spot, rallying, and crude rubber jumping about 3-100ths of a cents a pound.

Blast Rips Gap in Mississippi Levee

Belzoni, Miss., May 11 (AP)—Three charges of dynamite ripped a crevasse approximately 50 feet wide in an unguarded section of the levee about a mile south of here early today. National Guardsmen dispatched to this section by Gov. Bennett to prevent levee destruction, were concentrating efforts on the big Atchafalaya levee south of Silver City at the time.

'TUG'S' GANG GETS LIMIT IN STATE PRISON

5 Bandits Acquitted in a $5600 Holdup Scored by Court

Maximum State prison sentences of five years each were imposed in Suffolk Superior Court today on Earl "Tug" Wilson, ex-convict gunman, and three of the four others of his gang, yesterday found not guilty of a Chelsea payroll robbery, but convicted of receiving the $5600 loot.

Wilson was sentenced to 4½ to 5 years for receiving stolen property, and three to five years for carrying a gun, the sentences to run concurrently. He is on parole from a long sentence for shooting a policeman and before starting the new sentence must serve 15 years and four months of the old.

11 YEARS FOR DOWNEY

James Downey was sentenced to 4½ to 5 years for receiving stolen property and must also serve 8½ years of an old sentence from which he had been paroled before starting the new.

William Gillar was given 4½ to 5 years for receiving and 3 to 5 for carrying a gun, to run concurrently.

Armando De Angelis was given 4½ to 5 years for receiving. He is now serving a House of Correction sentence, but must serve the prison sentence before completing it.

Anthony Della Russo, who was also convicted of receiving, was given a two-year sentence in the House of Correction.

Judge Raoul H. Beaudreau, who presided at the trial of the five, and sentenced them today, pursued the records of the convicted men for 20 minutes before announcing punishment.

WILSON HAD HIS CHANCE

In sending Della Russo to the house of correction rather than to prison he took into consideration the fact that he has no recent record, he said.

"But in the case of the others it will be State prison sentences to be served on and after and in-

INDUSTRIAL LEADERS HAPPY AS ORDERS POUR IN

NATION-WIDE SURVEY SHOWS OUTLOOK BEST IN 4 YEARS

By The Associated Press.

Belief that business has finally found and rounded that elusive "corner" and is now strolling arm in arm with prosperity was expressed today by industrial leaders as they watched orders pile up for the first time since 1929.

Reported today were:

A sharp jump in wholesale commodity prices for the week ending May 6 as calculated from a list of the United States Department of Commerce.

Rising retail trade on the Pacific Coast.

Upward bound output in the automobile industry.

A first quarter increase of about 27 per cent over the same period last year) in airplane passenger and express traffic.

A 23,500 ton gain—the first since October, 1932—in unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corp.

Settlement of a strike of 5000 dressmakers in Philadelphia with immediate 10 per cent pay increase and hours reduced from 50 to 44 weekly.

An April increase of 5 per cent in employment and 4.3 per cent in payrolls in Maryland.

COTTON MILLS GAIN.

A 5 per cent wage increase for 1420 workers in the Lane cotton mills at New Orleans.

Additional 300 workers employed in Pepperell textile mills at Lindall, Ga., with mills operating 24 hours a day for first time in history.

Wages of 200 employes of Dexter Shirts, Inc., New York and Connecticut, raised 7½ to 10 per cent.

Butterfly silk mills at Sidney, N. Y., to reopen on 24-hour basis next Monday with year's advance orders to fill. To recall 60 from lengthy idleness.

Texas Textile Mill at McKinney, Tex., adds 200 to payroll to care for business described as "best in three years."

Wages of 35 employes of Zion Brook Company, Portland, Ore., increased 5 per cent.

In Gadsden, Ala., the Dwight Manufacturing Co., operators of a 60,000 spindle cotton mill, announced full time operations will begin Sunday with wages restored to the 1929 level an increase of 12½ per cent in the payroll. Three shifts working eight hours each will require 450 additional operatives.

CAR LOADINGS RISE.

The New York Central, Missouri Pacific, International Great Northern, Gulf Coast lines, Missouri-Kansas-Texas and St. Louis San Francisco railroads reported carloadings on the rise.

New York state was genuinely encouraged by a report that 16,000 persons went back to work there last month. At Detroit the National Steel Company said 2000 men would be employed to complete a big construction job.

In New York city the Dress-well Shirts, Inc., announced it had raised the wages of its 200 employes here and in Connecticut from 7½ to 10 per cent.

Concerns in Cleveland, Akron, O.; Lima, Los Angeles, Lebanon, Pa.; Martinsville, Va., were among those to add their names to the growing list that have granted wage increases. The boosts have mostly been for 5 or 10 per cent.

Clipping the Wings

One-third of the Navy's existing ships are to be "laid on the shelf."

Hundreds of naval officers are to drop out of the service.

Recruiting will cease and untrained new men will not be enlisted in the Navy until trained men go out to make room for them.

Added to this, the naval training stations will be shut down.

Not the Navy Department, which knows something about its own business, but the Director of the Budget—who learned about ships in Arizona—decrees these reductions by forcing "economy" to the total of $53,000,000.

And the Army comes next!

PUBLIC WORKS BILL IS PUT UP TO ROOSEVELT

Congress Chiefs Agree on $3,500,000,000 Jobs Measure

Washington, May 11 (AP)—Senator Wagner (D.), New York, said today that virtual agreement had been reached on the public works program bill, to which will be added provisions for a measure of industrial control, and that the bill probably would be presented to the President later in the day.

Wagner told newspapermen the industrial control section provides for voluntary agreements by industry on production, hours of labor and wages, and carries authority for government control to force recalcitrant minorities into line.

The agreements would eb approved by a government agency and anti-trust laws would be set aside to permit certain industrial combinations.

WHITE HOUSE MEETING.

The New Yorker was one of a group that conferred yesterday at the White House on the measure and was named on a committee to reach agreement on conflicting ideas.

He said that the "finishing touches" were to be put on the sweeping proposal at a meeting in his office today.

It was understood that a tax is contemplated to raise funds for the $3,300,000,000 public works section of the bill, but there was no indication what form the levy would take.

Senator Wagner went to the White House this morning as one of a group to confer with the President on the pending Home Loan bill.

In the tentative form the measure has taken, the Reconstruction Finance Corp. would act as a fiscal agency in handling the funds for the public works. The President is given broad powers over the building program and this probably would be delegated to an administrator.

TAX TO PAY INTEREST

The tax legislation will be framed to raise $200,000,000. This amount is expected to finance the bind issue by providing for interest payments and a sinking fund to amortize the bonds.

Rep. Byrns, the Democratic leader, expressed the view to reporters that the new measure would "obviate the necessity for action at this session on the 30-hour work week bill."

The pointed out the Wagner proposal takes care of problems involved in the work-week measure, including minimum wage and shorter hour questions.

He reiterated opposition to the modified measure reported by the House labor committee providing for a ban on imports which did not come under the terms of the short work week legislation. He said this would tie the hands of the President in the economic conference.

LOANS TO INDUSTRY

Senator Wagner said the section relating to industries would provide for loans to private industry from the Reconstruction Finance Corp. Industry has long sought this privilege.

Under the public works section, no specific projects would be named in the measure but Wagner was certain a naval building program would be included.

Data gathered in recent years would enable the President quickly to select projects on which men could be employed within a short time.

"If the bill is vigorously administered," Wagner said, "I am confident it will make a huge dent in the prevailing unemployment."

Mills Holds Control in Nevada Mine Railroad

Reno, Nev., May 11—Ogden Mills, former secretary of the Treasury, has bought a controlling interest in a railroad, anticipating a Nevada mining boom, it was said today.

Ogden Mills

Mills acquired control of the Virginia and Truckee Railroad, a historic short line which brought millions in gold and silver to Reno from Virginia City in the bonanza days of the Comstock Lode.

Details of the transaction were not made public. Mills and former President Hoover recently inspected the railroad. The V. and T. was built by Mills' grandfather, D. O. Mills, in 1868, and was owned by the Mills and Sharon estate.

N. Y. Society Girl to Wed Canadian Lumberman

Greenwich, Conn., May 11—Late in June, Miss Anne Vanderhoef of Windermeade, Greenwich, will become the bride of Fred H. Booth, Ottawa lumberman, it was announced to society by Miss Vanderhoef's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Bailey Vanderhoef.

Miss Anne Vanderhoef

Booth is a graduate of McGill University, and at present, vice president of the Booth Lumber Company of Ottawa. The bride-to-be attended Rosemary Hall school here, and Fernala School at Aiken, S. C. She is prominent in New York society circles.

Lodger Burns to Death

Providence, May 11 (AP)—Julia Lonergan, 55, was burned fatally when she upset a gas heater in her room in a lodging house.

MITCHELL SEES JURORS PICKED

New York, May 11 (AP)—Charles E. Mitchell, for years one of the giants of Wall Street, went on trial today charged with juggling tax figures to make a net income in 1929 and 1930 of more than $4,000,000 look like a net loss.

The government asserts that in those two years Mitchell, former head of the National City Bank and its affiliates, should have paid income taxes of $858,429.65. He paid none at all, net losses being shown through sale of securities at a price far below what he had paid for them.

The government charges these sales were spurious, were made solely to show a loss which did not actually exist, and with the understanding that he would buy the stocks back after income taxes had been evaded.

Selection of the jury began with Mitchell, grey-haired and stocky, watching intently from the counsel table as one talesman after another was rejected.

Banker Mitchell Resigns From Posts

New York, May 11 (AP)—Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank and now on trial on federal income tax charges, retired from the boards of directors of both the International Telephone & Telegraph and Postal Telegraph Corps.

In the case of the International Corp., Mitchell's term as a director expired. Frederick W. Allen of Lee, Higginson & Co., also retired from the International board. Philip K. Condict, George S. Gibbs and A. H. Griswold were elected as new board members.

Mr. Condict and Frank C. Page were chosen as new members of the Postal Corp. board.

Mackerel Catch to Be 2 Million Shy

Washington, May 11 (AP)—This season's Atlantic Coast mackerel catch was forecast today by the Bureau of Fisheries at 44,000,000 pounds, in addition to the catch of small yearling fish which cannot be estimated in advance. This is slightly smaller than the 46,000,000 pounds taken last season. The catch was 36,000,000 pounds in 1931 and 43,000,000 pounds in 1930.

N. H. Session Likely to Beat Time Record

Concord, N. H., May 11 (AP)—New Hampshire legislators are apparently determined to have the honor of the longest session on record in the past 64 years. The House recently voted to adjourn May 19. Recently leaders have admitted the session might be prolonged to May 26, or June 2.

Ends His Life After Trying to Kill Wife

Providence, May 11 (AP)—Antonio Silva, 30, shot and killed himself today in his Cranston, R. I., home, after an attempt to murder his wife in a fit of jealousy. He fired two shots at her and burned her face before she grabbed their two-year-old child and fled.

SWANSON CUTS NAVY BUDGET

Washington, May 11 (AP)—The curtailment that the navy will undergo to bring its budget down to $270,000,000 was outlined today in orders issued by Secretary Swanson, who expects to accomplish a $55,000,000 reduction.

The orders said the status of the navy yards at Portsmouth, Boston, Philadelphia and Charleston was dependent upon the availability of funds for new construction.

A naval building program totalling more than $200,000,000 is slated to be included in the public works measure.

The training station at Newport, R. I., is to be reduced to a bare maintenance status, but the war college will be maintained.

The yards at New York, Norfolk, Mare Island, Puget Sound and Cavite, Philippine Islands, are to be "maintained for service to the fleet."

The training station at Great Lakes, Ill., and the hospital there are to be reduced to a bare maintenance status, while the reserve aviation base is to be closed and discontinued.

The reserve aviation base at Squantum, Mass., is to be maintained in reduced satatus for voluntary training.

Devir Signs Budget

Mayor John D. Devir, of Malden, signed the Malden budget today, thereby putting it into effect immediately.

what India has been for thousands of years.

Gandhi refuses to eat, this time to impress on his countrymen the wickedness of their class system, which establishes the caste of "untouchables," human beings whose very touch, presence and breath are offensive to the higher castes, poor creatures classed lower than animals.

Yet Gandhi knows that two-thirds of his people would rather have restored to them the precious privilege of burning young widows alive with the dead bodies of their old husbands, and the other privilege of marrying little girls from eight to ten years of age to old men, than do away with the misery and injustice of the "untouchable" class.

The House of Commons was reminded the other day of Macaulay's prophecy that "by 1860 there would not be a heathen left in India."

By heathen Macaulay meant, probably, a human being living outside the influence of the Church of England.

That church, as regards its outward forms and dignities, will probably pass away with India still "heathen."

There are a hundred million more of the heathen in India now than there were in Macaulay's day, because the British have protected the Hindus from plagues, famines and from massacre by savage tribesmen to the north.

Changes and improvements come slowly, not that it is desired to suggest that a change from the philosophy of the Brahmins to Church of England teachings would be "an improvement" for Asiatics.

The "Be Kind" Magazine is amazed that "Uncle Sam should call the eagle his national emblem, while paying bounties in less than ten years for the killing of 41,812 eagles in Alaska.

There is nothing abnormal about that. We want one great emblematic American eagle, not thousands of others that kill lambs, fawns and birds that "civilized men" enjoy shooting.

The lion is the national emblem of the British, yet an Englishman enjoys nothing more than going to Africa to shoot a lion, except, perhaps, telling about it afterward.

GIRL'S SUICIDE THREAT READ IN $50,000 SUIT OVER LOVE

BUSWELL 'PLOT TO GET RID OF HER' IS TOLD

Maid Again Bares Her Midnight Trysts in Pianist's Room

Reading by defense counsel of a passage from a "suicide" letter of Miss Tyyne Niemi in Salem Superior Court featured today's session of trial of the girl's $50,000 suit against H. Leslie Buswell of Gloucester, for whom she formerly worked as housemaid, in his mansion, "Stillington Hall."

The passage ran:

"I blame no one on whose account I am ending my life. I hope my mother never hears of my death. God be with me in my moment of death."

Miss Niemi admitted writing that to a friend in a letter which she had never mailed but left in her room. But she insisted that she did not mean it.

BARES LOVE SCENES

The maid was grilled at length by Atty. William Sisk, counsel for Buswell. She claims her incarceration for five weeks in an insane asylum blighted a romance with Charles Naegele, pianist.

In her direct testimony she had told of being left alone for weeks at Stillington Hall with Naegele after the marriage of the Buswells, and she testified to hugging and kissing episodes.

Sisk asked her why she fled to the bathroom and locked herself in when the butler appeared at the door of her room with several other persons on the day she was taken to the hospital.

"I was frightened," she said.

Q.—Well, did you say you would jump from the window? A.—If I had a chance I would—if I thought I wouldn't get hurt.

GIFT OF GOLD

Q.—And you didn't know where you were going? A.—No, they wouldn't tell me. In the auto the policeman and the matron held my hands tight.

Q.—Did you say Mr. Naigele gave you $10 in gold? A.—Yes, Christmas, 1928.

Q.—Well, he made similar gifts to the other servants, didn't he? A.—In money but not in gold.

Q.—Did you ever go about the house partly undressed? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't the butler's wife ever speak to you about that? A.—No, never.

She said that she was in Mrs. Buswell's room when she overheard the Buswells, in Mr. Buswell's room, talking about her.

"I heard Mr. Buswell say, "You've got to do something to get rid of her; if you don't, I will do it.' Then I heard my name mentioned: 'Tyyne is nothing but a maid in this house; we can't have it go through.' Other times I heard talk of getting rid of me."

DIFFERENT STATUS

Mrs. Eleanor Patil of Gloucester, a friend of the girl, testified that she asked Buswell where Miss Niemi was, and received the reply that she had been acting strangely and had been taken to the state hospital.

"I told him I had see her two days before and she was all right then," testified Mrs. Patil.

Shaw's Dander Is Up as 2 U. S. College Boys Dub Him 'Flea'

London, May 11 (INS)—Being likened to a fly riding on the axle of a chariot wheel and exclaiming "What a dust I do raise!" is one thing—but being termed "a flea on the back of civilization" is just a little too much for George Bernard Shaw to swallow.

The Irish playwright, who recently returned from his first visit to the United States, made this clear in an interview today.

These and other epithets were hung on the bearded sage by students of Armstrong College at Newcastle, England, during a debate on Shaw and his influence. He took particular exception to a resolution introduced by Frederic S. Anderson, formerly of the University of Kansas, and William T. Morris, formerly of the University of Texas.

Shaw went into a rage when he learned the resolution after identifying him as a "flea," characterized him as "a menace to civilization."

"That is not witty or polite," he roared. "I can forgive good witticisms directed against me but I think Americans as university men ought to know better. And if they don't, their universities should teach them how to behave toward their elders."

Shaw was asked whether he considered himself a menace to civilization.

"Probably I am," he said, "but I shouldn't worry about that because people only find out things about me 20 years too late."

Feels Concern Over Wife and Child of Cape Kidnaper

By JAMES J. SMITH
(Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Harwichport, May 11—Fatherly interest today wove a strange paradox into the already weird kidnaping of 10-year-old Margaret "Peggy" McMath.

It was revealed in Peggy's father, Neil C. McMath, whose happiness over the safe return of his daughter has been dulled over concern for the family of his daughter's confessed abductor.

NO FEELING OF HATE

What will become of Mrs. Mollie Buck and seven-year-old Kenneth, Jr., wife and child of the man who faces a long prison term for the kidnaping of Peggy?

At his daily tasks, in the boatyard he shares with William V. Les, Peggy's father has repeatedly mentioned the problem to his boat-building associates.

The hate that might have grown for the kidnaper of his child has been shunted by the thoughts of his own boy and the mingled emotions he felt in the four-day captivity of his daughter. The problem is a testy one for McMath.

His feelings must not interfere with the law that sentences kidnapers. Yet, there is a wife who trusted and a boy who doesn't know. McMath, a man of cheerful, easy going and affable nature, is known to be suffering the worst reaction since his daughter's return.

He has publicly expressed his approval of Cyril Buck, although Cyril was jailed for his activities as "contact man" for his younger brother.

McMath is satisfied that Cyril acted in good faith and was honestly under the belief that Kenneth Buck was acting for desperadoes in ransom demands that finally totaled $60,000. But for Kenneth, who has confessed twice, the father of the kidnaped girl has little sympathy. It's the innocent who suffer. The innocent in Cape Cod's kidnaping are the wife and child of Kenneth Buck.

INQUIRY CLOSED

Actual investigation of the case has officially been declared as closed. The next step will be convention of a special grand jury at Barnstable Monday. Service of summonses for the session began immediately under orders of Dist. Atty. William C. Crossley.

Provided indictments are returned, the Buck brothers may go to trial on June 5 or shortly thereafter, according to the present plans of Dist.-Atty Crossley. At least 20 days must elapse between indictments and trial.

Three Auto Traps Run in Winchester

Three motor traps were put into operation in Winchester today and will be continued for the next week or 10 days. These traps are on the principal highways leading into the town from Woburn, Medford and Arlington. It is the first time Winchester has operated motor traps for several years, but the increase in accidents on these highways has resulted in this action.

KING TOO LAME TO WEAR HIS ROYAL COAT

Queen Will Hold Court Without George V for Americans

London, May 11 (INS)—Bringing keen disappointment to the American women to be presented, official announcement was made today that King George would be unable to attend tonight's royal court at Buckingham Palace owing to an attack of rheumatism.

The King is suffering pains in his left shoulder which will prevent him from wearing the heavy gold-braided military uniform with massive epaulets which is the traditional royal court dress, it was said. Therefore, he will be unable to attend the ceremony.

Eight American debutantes—a smaller number than usual—will be presented to the queen by Mrs. Ray Atherton, wife of the U. S. charge d'affaire in London.

The Americans to be presented are Miss Mollie Flagg, of Far Hills, N. J., Mrs. Robert Frazer, of Philadelphia, Pa., Miss Betty Golsan, of Richmond, Va., Miss Anne Howard, of Philadelphia, Miss Marion Howard, of the same city, Miss Hannah Locke, also of Philadelphia, Mrs. Grace Robert, of Coronado, Cal., and Miss Charlotte Lyman, of Boston, Mass.

Despite economic conditions, the court will be as brilli..t as in former years, the state apartments, banked with flowers from the royal gardens, forming a magnificent setting for the glittering spectacle.

600 STRIKERS IN PROTEST HIKE

While the entire police department stood ready for action, more than 600 strikers of the A. R. Hyde Shoe Co., Columbia st., and their sympathizers paraded in Cambridge today in a protest against what they claim are "sweat shop" working conditions in the plant.

As thousands of persons lined the sidewalks, the group started from a Cambridge st., East Cambridge, hall, marched into Inman sq., along Prospect st., into Massachusetts ave. and then to the Cambridge Common where they were to disband.

Each of the marchers carried small American flags, banners and placards. The banners and placards carried written protests against "sweat shops," non-union shoe companies and denunciations of the Hyde company.

Roosevelt Is Going to London, British Newspapers Claim

London, May 11 (AP)—Fresh reports described as "well authenticated" that President Roosevelt is coming to the World Economic Conference resulted in large headlines in this afternoon's newspapers. The reports came in press dispatches from America.

There was much interest in one rumor that the President was coming on the new cruiser Indianapolis. This cruiser, according to the story, is being prepared "for the fastest crossing of the Atlantic ever made by a ship."

Washington, May 11 (AP)—It was reiterated today at the White House that President Roosevelt has no present intention of attending the London Economic Conference opening June 12.

The fitting up of the cruiser Indianapolis to accommodate him was described as preparation for taking him on the cruiser's "shakedown" trip from Eastport, Me., to Baltimore next month.

The possibility of the President going to London should circumstances require his presence is not put beyond possibility by some of his friends, who recall his readiness to do unusual things when he thinks the situation requires it.

Even the Bible Hit by Hard Times

New York, May 11 (AP)—Bibles and parts of Bibles distributed in this country and abroad by the American Bible Society during 1932 totaled 8,067,136, the society reported at its 117th annual meeting today.

This number falls short of last year's by 1,678,200, and is smaller than that of any year since 1925. The report blamed economic conditions for the decrease.

ELECT MRS. GUY CUNNINGHAM

Philadelphia, May 11 (AP)—Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, Jr., of Princeton, N. J., who was the wife of the late President Cleveland, today was re-elected president of the Needlework Guild of America.

Mrs. Truman H. Newberry, Detroit, was elected honorary president. First, second and third vice-presidents chosen were, respectively, Miss Marion S. Beith, East Orange, N. J.; Mrs. Reba Barrett Smith, Alexandria, Va., and Mrs. Charles Gates Dawes, Evanston, Ill.

Mrs. Guy Cunningham, Boston, won the only contested office, that of fourth vice-president, defeating Mrs. Conrad Jansenn, San Jose, Cal.

Other officers elected are Miss Rosamond D. K. Bender, Philadelphia, executive secretary, and Mrs. Lewis A. Williams, Jr., Plainfield, N. J., recording secretary.

Girl Clothes Thieves' Terms Suspended

Two girls who caused a Norwood women's gymnasium class plenty of worry and embarrassment last March were given suspended sentences today in Dedham court when they were found guilty of larceny of clothing.

Patricia Janusitis, 18, of Lewis ave., and Albina Kazulis, 16, of Pleasant st., both Norwood, were the pair charged with loting the lockers of a gym class for unemployed.

Four Clam Diggers Are Let Off Easy

Four Whitinsville men, convicted in Quincy court today of digging clams in a contaminated area, chipped in to pay the $3 costs of trial and escaped without a fine when they told Jdge Avery they were trying to get food for their families and were unaware the ground was contaminated. The men were Albert and Eli Belanger, Louis Paquette and Eli J. Russo.

Taunton Firm Files Appeal in Urn Case

A motion to set aside the $4,000 verdict awarded Miss Dorothy Helen Maas of Milwaukee, for burns from coffee showered on her fro man urn manufactured by a Taunton firm, was filed in Federal court today. A new trial was also sought by counsel for the defendant, Reed & Barton Corp., on the ground the verdict was not in conformity with law.

FOLEY IN FIGHT OVER M'KNIGHT TRIAL JUDGE

Dist. Atty. Foley today unsuccessfully opposed trial of execs Industrial Bank & Trust Co. indictments before Judge John J. Burns, who yesterday found Edwin T. McKnight and 12 other Industrial bank defendants not guilty of conspiracy.

"I don't believe these cases should be tried before a judge who has already found that other persons can commit crime, but that bankers can only make mistakes.

"I represent the people of Suffolk County who are vitally interested in these bank cases, and I do not think it is fair to force the government to immediate trial before a judge who has already found that the grand jury which returned the indictments was 'unintelligent'."

After leaving the courtroom with his battle lost, Foley said to newspapermen:

"In other cases, the decision is given in the simple words, 'guilty' or 'not guilty.' But the not guilty verdicts in the case of the bankers takes a nine-page affair."

Judge Cox adhered to his previous decision to leave the cases on the list for immediate trial. As Judge Burns was free, the cases went to his session.

The hearing before Judge Cox, which developed considerable heat before it was over, started with Asst. Dist. Atty. John J. Murphy asking that no more industrial cases be tried this month.

The defense objected and Judge Cox said that in view of the opposition he would have to leave the cases on the trial list.

Former City Councillor Robert Gardiner Wilson, Jr., one of the defendants, asked immediate trial.

Judge Cox had proceeded to other maters after sending the cases to Judge Burns' session when Foley, having having received a report from Murphy, appeared and asked permission to speak, which was granted.

After Foley finished Judge Cox explained his position and said he had sent all remaining 19 indictments to Judge Burns' session.

SOVIET SAINT IN RADIO CITY

Hailed as the foremost modern muralist, fat Mexican Diego Rivera's work in the U. S. almost always brings a storm of protest. Radio City has just paid him off and ordered him away from its walls because he incorporated the head of Nikolai Lenin, first Soviet saint, in a painting paid for with Rockefeller money. Lenin has been covered with burlap while the artist is consulting lawyers. Last storm was raised by Detroit pastors, who said Rivera's mural, depicting child's vaccination, was blasphemy of Holy Family. It is still on wall of city's art museum. His style is vigorous, his colors are almost garish. (International News Photos.)

Lenin's Picture Will Stay in R. C. A. Hall, Says Red Artist

New York, May 11 (US)—"Lenin's picture stays in"—Diego Rivera, famous artist.

"Lenin's face must be substituted by that of an unknown"—Nelson A. Rockefeller, son of John D., Jr.

Such was the deadlock today in the controversy over the great mural painting in the grand entrance hall of the 74-story R. C. A. building in Rockefeller Center.

Rivera, Mexican artist with Communistic ideas, painted the picture of Nikolai Lenin, apostle of the Soviets, in the mural, the central one of three illustrating "human intelligence in control of the forces of Nature." He insists art is art and that Lenin should properly be in the group.

"That's out."

There were rumors of a compromise. One was that Rivera would "remove" Lenin's face. Rockefeller Center, however, denied any such offer had been received. Another report was the artist would willingly "balance" Lenin by putting Abraham Lincoln into the mural with John Brown and a couple of others.

That, however, doesn't get the Soviet apostle out of the picture, which the Rockefellers insist must be done.

Rivera was paid $14,000, completing full payment of his $21,000 contract and told his services were no longer required, even though the mural is unfinished.

It was learned that regardless of the outcome of the controversy the mural will remain, with possibly a covering over Lenin.

WALSH RECEIVES MITRE JUNE 29

Bishop-elect James A. Walsh, co-founder of the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America, will be consecrated in Rome June 29, it was made known today. He will leave New York for Rome early next month.

The ceremony will be performed by Cardinal Fumasoni-Biondi, until recently Apostolic Delegate to the United States and now head of the world-wide Congregation of the Propagation of the Faith. The date of the consecration is the Feast of the Apostles, Peter and Paul, and is also the 22d anniversary of the founding of Maryknoll.

Among the intimate friends of the new bishop who will participate in the consecration are Rev. James E. Kelly, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Jamaica Plain; Rev. James G. Keller, representative of the Maryknoll Fathers in New York city; the Most Rev. John J. Dunn, auxiliary bishop of New York, and Monsignor Cashin of New York.

HUBBY IS BOSS IN FRANCE

Versailles, France, May 11 (AP)—Nelson Morris, Chicago millionaire, and Jane Aubert, French stage star, were divorced today.

Jane Aubert

Mr. Morris was awarded the divorce in a counter-action against his wife's suit, the court holding that she had deserted him to appear on the stage. This was indicated in a decree to the husband, whose will is supreme in French law, the court asserted.

The wife's suit was rejected, the court ruling that her allegation of cruelty was supported only by the statement that Morris could not make her happy, which did not constitute "grave injury."

The decision ends three years of litigation and permits Miss Aubert to return to the stage in France, from which she was legally barred by an injunction obtained by Morris.

LINDY KIDNAPERS NAMED

planning a kidnaping. Fenton asked him to come into the kidnaping as a "contact man" and he refused.

He asked Fenton then if he knew the whereabouts of Henderson, and Fenton told him Henderson was "down in New Jersey," and was connected with the kidnaping plot.

ASKED EX-JUDGE

Means said he had several additional talks with Fenton and that Fenton left New York on Feb. 22, returning two days later. On Feb. 26, Means returned to Washington and on March 2 read in the papers of the kidnaping.

Several days later when nothing developed to indicate Lindbergh might get his baby back, Means said he took his story to an ex-judge, Marion de Vries, in Washington, and asked him if he could get authority to work on the case so that Means would not be suspected by authorities.

He said De Vries told him to get in touch with Fenton right away and that he went straight to a post-office and wrote Fenton a letter asking him to come to Washington immediately.

After this, Means said, he returned home and told his wife what he had done. He asked his wife if she knew anyone who might be valuable under the circumstances and she named a Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fleming. Mrs. Means called the Flemings on the phone and Fleming came by to see Means that night, March 4.

CALL FROM WHITE HOUSE.

He said Fleming told him he knew Col. Robert Guggenheim very well and that Guggenheim was a good friend of Lindbergh. Fleming, he said, then put in a long-distance call to Guggenheim and made a tentative appointment between Means and himself. After this Means said he received a mysterious call from the telephone company and was asked to call the White House immediately.

Means did not explain the mysterious White House call.

Mrs. McLean, whom Means was convicted of swindling out of $104,000 and now on trial for allegedly trying to get $35,000 more, entered into the case at this point. Means said Mrs. McLean telephoned him and he went to see her.

After a number of conferences with her, he said, he met Capt. Land (now Rear-Admiral Emory Land, a cousin of Col. Lindbergh's wife) through Mrs. McLean and that Land agreed to get authority from Lindbergh for Means to work on the case.

Fenton and Henderson were brought into the case again at this point, Means said that several days after he wrote Fenton he received a telephone call from him at 8 p. m. and Fenton said he was in Washington. Means continued:

"I asked Fenton to meet me in front of 2020 Massachusetts ave. (Mrs. McLean's home), and then called Mrs. McLean and told her I would come to see her in 20 minutes.

"I talked to Fenton outside of the house before I went inside. I asked him if he had located Henderson. He said he had and that Henderson was in New Jersey. Then he said:

"Have you seen all that stuff in the papers about the Lindbergh kidnaping?"

"I said 'yes.'

"Fenton said:

TO GET RID O FCHILD

"'We are in a devil of a fix. Instead of getting it to Col. Lindbergh we are blocked on every side. Every inch of his grounds is covered by investigators and officials. Do you know how to get rid of the child right away.'

"I said I might know and said I was going into Mrs. McLean's house and meet a relative of Lindbergh. Fenton asked me to find out if I could provide immunity for him if the baby was returned at once. I said I would go inside the house at once and find out. He was to call me later. I then went into Mrs. McLean's home and met Capt. Land."

Means was interrupted only once in his testimony when Dist. Atty. Rover asked him the correct spelling of Fenton's name. The jury was leaning forward as one person and a pin could be heard dropping in the court room.

Salem Strikers Defy Order to Go Back

Striking textile workers at the Naumkeag Steam Cotton Co., of Salem and Peabody, today defied the order of Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America and refused to return to work. McMahon was booed by the strikers last night at a mass meeting.

More than 1,800 workers involved in the strike gathered at the two plants today to receive their pay for last week, but there were no disorders.

dependent of any other charges against them," said the court.

He pointed out that Wilson had been given an opportunity to reform but hadn't done it.

The men were under heavy guard in the courtroom and were taken to prison immediately after imposition of the sentences. During their trial for the payroll holdup at the Harold Shoe Co., Chelsea, private detectives were always present and known gangsters were spotted trailing the jury.

Defense counsel argued for light sentences. In the case of Wilson court was asked to file the sentence because he never had been convicted of receiving stolen property before.

Mrs. Delia Russo and Wilson's girl friend were in court.

The men were sentenced after Judge Beaudreau had denied motion of their counsel to set aside the guilty verdict. Herbert F. Callahan, for Della Russo, argued the verdict must have been a compromise and that the jury considered the five defendants as one, instead of individually.

MISCARRIAGE OF JUSTICE

"It was a miscarriage of justice, if I understand you?" the court interrupted.

Callahan agreed that the guilty of receiving stolen goods verdict was a miscarriage, but not the not guilty robbery verdict.

John P. Feeney, for Wilson, said his client was entitled to a not guilty verdict unless "you are ready to say as a judge that this money was stolen by another."

the chief merits of the American system of written constitutional law, that all the powers entrusted to government are divided into the three grand departments, the executive, the legislative and the judicial. That the functions appropriate to each of these branches of government shall be vested in a separate body of political servants and that the perfection of the system requires that the lines which separate and divide these departments shall be broadly and clearly defined. It is also essential to the successful working of this system that the persons entrusted with power in any one of these branches shall not be permitted to encroach upon the powers confided to the others, but that each shall by the law of its creation be limited to the exercise of the powers appropriate to its own department and no other."

President Roosevelt justifies himself by saying that this action of Congress in conferring its powers upon the executive—which is held by the Supreme Court itself to be unconstitutional—has been taken before.

That only makes the procedure the more dangerous to our American institutions and our republican form of government.

Every unconstitutional act creates a precedent and the more often an unconstitutional act is performed, the more force it acquires as a precedent and the greater is the probability that the unconstitutional act will be again repeated.

The precedent which may have before been established, President Roosevelt now takes as a justification for his present unconstitutional action.

The precedent which in turn Mr. Roosevelt establishes may some day be taken by an autocratic executive to justify unconstitutional action which might be altogether unworthy and injurious to the republic.

* * *

THERE are several points to be considered concerning the action of Congress in divesting itself of powers conferred upon it by the Constitution:

Primarily there is the unconstitutionality of such action. That is a question which no President has any authority to decide.

A President obviously cannot first arrogate to himself the powers of the Congress and then assume the powers of the Supreme Court in passing upon the constitutionality of his action.

According to the wisdom of the fathers, the government was divided into three co-equal branches—the legislative, the executive and the judicial.

The Congress makes the laws, the President executes them, and it is the Supreme Court which decides whether they are constitutional or not.

Deciding the constitutionality of an act is not the function of the President, any more than it is his function to invade the rights of Congress.

Mr. Roosevelt is a good President and his motives are undoubtedly good. But good motives do not justify the commission of unconstitutional acts.

Mr. Roosevelt is also undeniably an able President; but he surely cannot be any greater in ability and patriotism than the men who founded this government and created the Constitution for its guidance.

There is no occasion for Hitlerism in the United States, even benevolent Hitlerism.

Constitutional methods are ample to meet any situation and ample to give President Roosevelt full freedom of action along legal lines.

* * *

THE Congress of the United States is heartily in sympathy with the benevolent purposes of the President.

President Roosevelt has often recommended to Congress a policy which has been adopted by Congress on the very next day.

In fact most of the beneficial acts that have been performed by the administration have been performed in this legal and constitutional manner.

With a Congress so eager to co-operate with the President there is no justification whatever for departing from constitutional methods.

The only reason for Congress to confer any of its constitutional powers upon the executive is to give him the opportunity to perform arbitrarily and perhaps secretly acts which the Congress itself should perform constitutionally and publicly.

It is easily conceivable, moreover, that the acts so performed arbitrarily and perhaps secretly by the executive might not be at all in accord with public sentiment and public welfare.

Therefore, for every reason, the constitutional methods of our government should be maintained—

FIRST, Because this is the only sound legal procedure;

SECOND, Because it is the only safe procedure to maintain intact our American institutions and our republican form of government;

THIRD, Because it is the only way in which the people of the United States can be protected from some hasty or unwise action, secretly performed, which might inure to their great disadvantage.

* * *

AS BRYCE in "The American Commonwealth" says:

"The Constitution of the United States has rendered and renders now inestimable services. It opposes obstacles to rash and hasty change. It forces the people to think seriously before they alter it or pardon the transgression of it. It makes legislatures and statesmen slow to overpass their legal powers, slow even to propose measures which the Constitution seems to disapprove. It altogether prevents some changes which a temporary majority may clamor for but which will have ceased to be demanded before the barriers interposed by the Constitution have been overcome. It trains the people to habits of legality, as the Law of the Twelve Tables trained the minds of the educated Romans. It makes them feel to comprehend their supreme instrument of government is a personal duty, incumbent on each one of them."

In Mr. Roosevelt the nation has a great and good President, but the best way for him to continue to be a great and good President is to abide by the provisions of the Constitution of the United States and not arrogate to himself either the rights of the Congress or the functions of the judiciary.

RENEW OSSIPEE BABY SEARCH

Ossipee, N. H., May 11(AP)—A veritable fine-tooth comb moved slowly across field and woodland today as state and Carroll County officials sought little Sarah Walker, 2, who vanished a few yards from her home on May 1.

Baffled 10 days ago in their quest for an explanation of the mystery surrounding the child's disappearance, officials today began to research ground covered before, using rakes, hoes and potato diggers.

They planned to leave no twig or stone unturned, and if the search of fields and woods bordering the county road where the Walker family lives should fail, they were prepared to plow up the road itself in the belief the child's body might have been buried in the muddy highway.

The little girl had been playing near her home and started down the hill road carrying a pill box and a little toy bathtub. Half an hour later she had disappeared, leaving behind only the pill box lying in a rut in the road and the little bathtub tossed to the other side of the highway.

This spot was near where she was last reported seen by a neighbor, Mrs. Albertine O'Brien, who said her chauffeur, Frank Schwen, was forced to stop their car while descending the hill while she screamed to the child to get out of the path of the automobile.

25 POLICE RUSH TO BLOCK VET BONUS ARMY

Washington, May 11 (AP)—A detail of 25 police from the Washington force was sent to Capitol Hill today to do guard duty.

There were no veterans visible in the grounds or around the building at the time.

A group of marchers camped on a vacant lot joining the House office building had decided to yield to police orders to move.

GLASSFORD IN WARNING

Pelham D. Glassford, who was in charge of police when the veterans marched on Washington a year ago, spoke to Foulkrod's men shortly after they awakened this morning. He told them he believed they had been brought to Washington under "false pretenses" and that they should consider orders very carefully before they decided to stay indefinitely.

Foulkrod's men were addressed by Representative Charles V. Truax (D.), Ohio, who told them he was "100 per cent for immediate cash payment of the bonus," and denounced last year's expulsion of the B. E. F. through force of arms as "the blackest crime on the pages of American history."

The men were told of six small delegations instructed to lobby in the House and Senate office buildings.

"Don't bother the farmer-laborites and others who are definitely for us," Foulkrod told them. "Concentrate on the weak sisters—the ones we've got to bring around if we want to put this thing through.

ROOSEVELT EASES CUTS

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt had let it be known that the economies expected to be effected through slashes in veterans' payments for service connected disabilities would be reviewed and made less severe.

A statement was issued at the White House, that as a result of conferences of the President, Louis Johnson, commander of the American Legion, and Director Lewis Douglas of the budget, and application of new regulations "it now seems that the cut in compensation of service connected World War veterans with specific injuries has been deeper than intended."

BONUS MARCHERS GET REAL WELCOME TO THE CAPITAL

Bonus army marchers converging on Washington were split in two camps today, those who were the guests of the Government, in tents and well fed in Fort Hunt, Va., ten miles from the capital, and those who attempted to set up a camp in the rear of the House office building. The latter have been ordered to leave by sundown today. Above is the registration office in the Fort Hunt camp, where the army has set up 850 tents to shelter the expected thousands. A long queue of veterans, some of them accompanied by their children, are presenting their credentials to Registration Officer Frank L. Fyan of the B. E. F., seeking the welcome admission, which contrasts so greatly with the attitude of last summer. (International News Photos.)

GIRL STRICKEN AT CARD GAME

An obstruction in the blood circulation was believed today to have caused the death of Miss Jean Henderson, 18, of Yonkers, N. Y., Wellesley College sophomore, who was stricken last night, and died in less than an hour.

Doctors defined the obstructor as an embolus. Such obstructions, it was said, usually consisted of a clot of fibrin, a shred from a growth, a globule of fat, air bubbles or a micro-organism.

A pall of gloom has been cast over the campus by the tragedy. During her college career, Miss Henderson has always been a healthy and appeared to be in perfect condition.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Broadway Merry-Go-Round!

Victor Watkins may have had ideals and ambitions when he was younger. For all I know, he still may have ideals and ambitions. I'm referring to Victor Watkins, a Western Union messenger boy who drops into the office occasionally on business. It would never have occurred to me to discuss young Mr. Watkins and his ideals and ambitions were it not for the fact that the day before yesterday he walked into my office and deposited with me a collection of old magazines dealing with Broadway of 25 and 35 years ago—also the Broadway of 15 years ago. I gather therefrom that Messenger Boy Watkins' chief ambition is a hobby—to collect data on the Broadway of the past. I am extremely grateful to the lad. For the past hour or so I have been browsing—I believe that's the appropriate word—through the various magazines, pamphlets and newspapers which he has collected, and have had a thrilling time.

A theater magazine dated April, 1908, for instance, carries a cover-piece portrait of a youthful looking Mande Adams, who, it appears, was starring in something called "The Jesters." In this same issue appears an interview with a James O'Neill—the Actor and the Man in which he recites his career and mentions that Monte Cristo in which he had appeared 5100 times had earned him something like $800,000—but he does not mention, anywhere in the interview, that he has a young son named Eugene. I pick up another magazine, dated April, 1910, and read that at Keith-Albee's, Sophie Tucker and her Five Kings of Syncopation entertain nightly, beginning at 8—that she draws immense crowds—that it is her personal charm and her unusual ability in properly driving home the popular hits of the day that are responsible for her success. An advertisement informs me that Ted Lewis is "not only the King of International Jass, but a mighty nice chap" who is giving a "jass ball at Webster Hall, admission $2."

Here at hand is a magazine tagged "Broadway Beauties," dated April, 1899. "What," it demands, indignantly and editorially, "is behind this whole affair of the poisoning of Henry Barnet and Mrs. Adams, the attitude of Harry Cornish, Roland Molineaux, Mrs. Rogers, the position of the District Attorney's office and the Detective Bureau? Where will this thing end?" We move on a few pages and there we inspect a series of pictures of Lina Cavalieri, the beauty. The titles are as follows: "Cavalieri's Delicious Profile," "Cavalieri's Full Face," "Cavalieri's Luscious Semi-Profile," "Cavalieri Trying to Hang Herself." A few more pages onward and behold—composing Miss Cavalieri before the birth of the late Graphic. For on page 91 we find the head of Anna Held on the body of Jefferson De Angelis carried along by the legs of Francis Wilson. There is a very touching picture of Lillian Russell in a pensive mood and of Mrs. Leslie Carter looking something like Mae West with clothes up to her neck. A movie magazine dated Sept. 4, 1914, announces the current standing of contestants in a great picture star popularity race. Grace Cunard leads with a vote of 189,250. Others well up are Pauline Bush, Louise Fazenda, Cleo Madison, Anna Little, Mary Fuller and Betty Schade.

The temptation is to linger with young Watkins' collection of ancient magazines, but present-day Broadway beckons and so we spin around on this merry-go-round and survey the terrain. Tall Neal Andrews, man of wealth, continues to carry the torch for his blonde lass who was his wife, Dorothy Hall. She's over in London and Andrews is making preparations to sail shortly—some insist to back her in a play there. Neva Lynn, back from her mysterious flight to Florida, insists she didn't marry Eddie Judson, once the husband of Hazel Forbes, but still cares for Tommy Manville, who in turn has been making the rounds lately with two former flames, Norma Taylor and Marion Carewe and who on Saturday last had aboard his yacht as one of his guests, a former wife, Lois Manville.

And so we move along. Which reminds me—this department does not feel too happy that in one of its columns recently it reported a rumor about the Gene Tunneys. Mutual friends of mine and Tunney's have been on my scrawny neck ever since, insisting that in my misguided journalistic zeal, I had inflicted unnecessary hurt on a fellow whose love and devotion to his wife is one of the beautiful things in that circle to which people of headline ratings are eligible. And so I take this opportunity of squelching, once and for all, the Greenwich whispers. Tunney and his patrician wife are too grand a couple to hurt. Over in Ben Marden's Riviera is the dancing couple of Darin and Diane—Darin, who gave up dancing some years ago to tilt with the bears and bulls of Wallin' Wall only to return last season to Broadway — some $200,000 poorer. And Diane, slim, blonde beauty, who rose from the ranks of a night club chorus. I watched them in their graceful swaying and tossing last week and felt an inner glow that they were so warmly received. Wherefor I couldn't understand the look of utter dejection on Darin's face until I inquired and learned that his entire evening had been ruined because his brand-new shoes squeaked every time he took a step on the floor.

RACKET GRIP ON UNION BROKEN

Chicago, May 11 (AP)—Alleged racketeer control of the Chicago Teamsters' Union was declared broken today by officials as they ordered 3000 drivers and helpers to return to work at a reduced wage scale.

Breaking of the strike marked a victory for the Chicago Coal Merchants' Association, 187 of whose yards were closed in an attempt to break the grip the trucking and transportation agency reputedly had on the union.

Coal yard officials had expressed a willingness to deal with the union, but would have nothing to do with T-N-T, as the agency was known.

What Are You Going to Do About It?

FAKE trade associations have been another.

In small industries all over the country—and, frequently, in some pretty big industries, too—the racketeer has been taking his unlawful toll both ways.

The workingman's pay envelope has to be shared with the racketeer, or else no job.

The business proprietor has to pay for "protection" or else his plant is dynamited, or his patrons are driven away.

Ask the law for protection? The victims of the racketeer fear the racketeer's vengeance far more than the racketeer has feared the law.

And the public has been paying the toll—millions upon millions.

* * *

"The racketeer has unquestionably made life precarious and more costly."

Every dollar extorted unlawfully by racketeers in your community adds to the cost of living.

Every crime of violence perpetrated by them disgraces your community.

What are you going to do about it?

EACH BRANDED OTHER SLAYER

Police Sergt. Thomas Lydon of Norwood related today in Dedham superior court the accusations hurled at each other by Ali and Ahmed Osman, cousins, charged with the murder of Anealy Keras, their nine-year-old neighbor, last Christmas Day.

Each charged the other with the brutal murder while riding in the police car from Norwood to Dedham, Sergt. Lydon testified.

Dr. Arthur S. Hartwell, medical examiner, and George E. Bolling, Brockton city chemist, also testified at the trial today.

Dr. Hartwell declared that the child's death was due to strangulation.

NAZI WREATH THIEF FINED

London, May 11 (INS)—Capt. J. E. Sears, prospective Laborite Parliamentary candidate, today was fined 40 shillings for "wilfully damaging" a wreath placed at the Cenotaph by Alfred Rosenberg, special party foreign minister.

Sears, however, was acquitted of the main charge of stealing the wreath, valued at £5 sterling, from the monument of Britain's war dead.

Sir John Gilmour, home secretary, was bombarded by sarcastic questions in Commons regarding Rosenberg's presence in London.

LEAGUE CALLED TO ACT ON WAR

Geneva, Switzerland, May 11 (AP)—The League of Nations convoked a special session of its council today to consider Paraguay's declaration of war against Bolivia, the first formal declaration since the birth of the league.

This action was taken after a meeting of the council's committee on the dispute had been convoked as a result of official notification of the Paraguayan declaration.

Sean Lester of the Irish Free State presided at the committee meeting, at which there were representatives of Spain and Guatemala.

Infants Are Made Immune to Ills

Washington, May 11 (AP)—New results of curbing childhood diseases by making use of the power of mothers to transmit immunity to their children were described today before the American Pediatric Society.

Dr. Charles F. McKhann, Jr., told of successful efforts to prevent development of measles in children, and encouraging results in treatment of diphtheria, scarlet fever and infantile paralysis by the use of an extract of tissue from the human body that contains this power of immunity.

Patent Lawyer Dies

GERMANY FIRM FOR RE-ARMING

Geneva, May 11 (INS)—Germany, whose arms equality demands have deadlocked the disarmament conference, is determined to re-arm.

This was shown today in a statement issued by Foreign Minister Von Neurath through the German League of Nations Union.

Von Neurath's statement outlined in cut and dried terms the unflinching attitude of the Reich toward the Geneva conference, and stressed her intention to obtain complete equality with other European nations, regardless of the outcome.

The pronouncement struck statesmen here like a bombshell, and as a result the deadlocked conferences has postponed its general sessions until next week.

3 GOVERNORS IN MILK PARLEY

Three governors and representatives of two others met today in the office of Gov. Ely with leaders of the milk industry to discuss new milk marketing plans for the New England states. The meeting was held behind closed doors.

Present were: Gov. Wilson of Vermont, Gov. Winant of New Hampshire, Gov. Ely; Frank Washburn, Commissioner of Agriculture, representing Gov. Brann of Maine; and Albert L. Lathan, representing Gov. Green of Rhode Island.

Others included Albert W. Felker, Commissioner of Agriculture of New Hampshire; Prof. Howard B. Ellenberger of the University of Vermont and Judge E. O'Brien of Lee.

JAPS BOMB U. S. HOSPITAL; 5 DIE

Peiping, May 11 (INS)—Firing a machine gun fusillade at the Peiping military garrison, a Japanese bombing airplane today brought the Sino-Japanese conflict to the heart of China.

Flying over Peiping at dawn, the enemy aircraft suddenly swooped down on the garrison building, loosing a hail of bullets against the headquarters of a detachment of Chinese troops.

Gen. Ho Ying-Ching, Chinese commandant, said the rain of lead inflicted no damage.

At the same time, another Japanese plane flew over Chichow, east of Peiping, and bombed a field hospital maintained by the Peking Medical College Hospital, an adjunct of the Rockefeller Foundation. Five Chinese soldier patients were killed and several others were wounded.

The two surprise air attacks were launched as Japanese-Manchukuo troops pressed down from the north toward the Peiping-Tientsin area, menacing American and British lives and property in their rapid advance.

The plane which fired on the garrison here completely reconnoitered the city and its outskirts, leading observers to believe it was making observations preparatory to expected occupation of the area by Japanese forces, which have already subjugated the Lwan river district.

Except when it swooped down on the garrison, the plane maintained sufficient altitude to avoid Chinese ground fire, military officials said.

AD MEN BACK UP NEW U. S. PLAN

Washington, May 11 (AP)—The American Association of Advertising Agencies opened its 16th annual convention today with a pledge of co-operation with the government on legislation that does not hamper legitimate advertising.

A resolution adopted by the executive board expressed "sympathy with the announced purpose of the government to discourage and prevent false or unfair advertising" and offered "to co-operate with any constructive legislation that does not hamper legitimate advertising and a reasonably persuasive appeal to the public."

The action followed word that F. G. Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, was drafting an administration bill requiring government approval of food and drug advertising after conferences with advertisers and other interests.

THAT UPSET MORNING FEELING YOU HAVE

Nine Chances in Ten It's "Acid Stomach"

How You Can Easily Correct It

According to many authorities, some 80% of the people of today have acid stomach. This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

It usually makes itself felt in sour stomach, indigestion, headaches, nausea, "gas," "biliousness," and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

What This Does

That's all you do. But you do it regularly, EVERY DAY, so long as you have any symptoms of distress.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy.

Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM—

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

PREMIERE

Thrilling Romance of Hollywood Today

While Cavanaugh and Kruger Are Wrangling, Burglars in Next Room Blow the Safe

By Robert Terry Shannon

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Leni Luneska, beautiful motion picture star, is embarrassed at the premiere of her latest picture when her husband, Karl Kruger, whom she thought in prison, arrives and threatens to reveal his identity unless she talks with him. Lucky Cavanaugh, a gambler, prevents Kruger from making a scene and has him placed in a private office to await Leni after the show. In the next office, thieves are burglarizing the safe. Leni goes to Kruger. He demands recognition as her husband. She refuses, but he says he will wait for her to reconsider. Cavanaugh, fascinated by Leni's beauty, follows her into the box. He takes Leni in his arms and, in an unguarded moment, she allows him to kiss her. Suddenly regaining her composure, she asks him to take her back and forget about it. Cavanaugh goes to Kruger and insists that he leave, but the latter is defiant. Meanwhile, the burglars are waiting for the gunfire of the battle scene on the screen inside to drown the noise of dynamiting the safe.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 9

ALL OF them became silent again while the nervous clicking of the watch bespoke the seconds bringing the screen play to its deafening holocaust of roaring battle. Four thousand persons —most of them in evening clothes—sat in plush seats and experienced the carbon-copy emotions of real warfare.

Behind the cramped walls of muddy trenches a division of French infantry watched the dawn in Flanders. A heavy mist billowed before the eye, filling folds and hollows of mysterious landscape. Vaguely the twin spires of the cathedral in the distance began to take form.

The poilus in battle-stained uniforms clutched their rifles and peered into the gray fog as they awaited the zero hour of death. Behind their backs handsome officers in natty uniforms walked up and down and glanced nervously at their watches. It was the hush before the storm.

The figure of a poilu crept out of a dug-out—a strangely fragile and delicate form to be engaged in the grim business of war. For a moment the audience thinks it is a boy of 10 or 12, but the audience is wrong. The camera angle is shifted and it is seen that Leni Luneska has reached the front.

LENI RESCUED

She has deceived the entire Allied army into believing that she is a soldier of France. The remarkable, even incredible, yet it unfolds before the eye and is gladly believed.

Leni has come to die with her sweetheart. He is the soldier of the handsome profile and his uniform is the best fit in the regiment.

A minor miracle happens. It develops that the commander is the scoundrel who made her life very miserable in the peaceful days before the war. Her gorgeous beauty does not deceive him into believing she is a poilu. His eyes light upon her and immediately he knows that she is not one of his men. He recognizes her. The zero hour is forgotten as his Gallic blood becomes molten with passion. War is war and brooks no time for paltry formalities between man and woman. Before she can scream to her sweetheart she is in the officer's grasp and on the way to a convenient dugout.

Leni is rescued at the crucial moment by General Von Hindenburg who liberates upon the French army the concentrated fury of 10,000 tons of shrapnel and dynamite.

Vast geysers of dust spring up and settle slowly to earth. It is an inferno of mighty concussion flinging debris through the smoke-laden universe. Roar after roar shakes the heavens, shot through with the shrill scream of flying shells. The walls of the theater tremble. Conversation is impossible. It is worse than a boiler factory. It lasts for three entire minutes. It is epic. The picture proceeded.

In her box, Leni watched and listened. The battle roar was dying down and the audience, carried away by emotion was contributing a machine-gun rattle of applause. This was success. They liked it. Motion pictures are valuable because they carry people out of themselves—high above the actualities of life. In some way, not quite clear to her, she knew that tonight she had helped 4000 people to escape the crass realities of their own tiresome existence.

The beginning of success and its end. In the midst of it she suddenly felt cold and drew her cloak tightly around her shoulders. Tonight would never come again.

Her lips were dry as dust. Tomorrow her name would be soiled with scandal and next week the newspapers would be printing laudatory photographs of some other new star. This was Hollywood and Leni Luneska was all through with it.

EXPLOSION CAME

But none of this affected the burglary upstairs where a steady hand lit a fuse that ran to a business-like charge of nitro-glycerine. The three men dressed as ushers flattened themselves out of danger against a wall and waited for the explosion. When it came it was like a muffled cough of a giant, lost in the cyclone of noise that rocked the theater. The whole front of the safe fell forward and struck the floor.

Immediately the men were frantically busy prying open the tin cash boxes.

So completely had the bombardment on the screen disguised the explosion of the safe that even Karl Kruger and Lucky Cavanaugh, separated from the burglary by a single wall, had not heard the safe blowing. This failure on their part, however, might have been attributed to the fact that they were suspended together in that pregnant instant where human life trembles in the cosmic balance.

Karl Kruger had a philosophy, but, naturally, was unable to sustain it against the white fire of his blinding emotions. He raised the revolver in his clutching hand to the level of Lucky Cavanaugh's breast. Neither man breathed.

The difference between them lay in the fact that Lucky Cavanaugh was able to think clearly. Without undue haste, he put a hand behind him. His fingers touched the light switch on the wall and the next instant the room was in darkness. In the same moment of silent suspense, he stepped soft-footedly to one side.

KRUGER FIRED

"Where are you?" cried Kruger in a voice so loud and angry that it filled the room with hatred.

The weapon in his hand belched fire and noise. When it had roared six times, Lucky Cavanaugh touched the switch and the room was light again.

Kruger's face had the look of green mud. The revolver dropped from his hand as a hoarse cry sprang from his throat. Everything before him was a blurred haze.

"Let me out of here!" he screamed.

Before Cavanaugh could lay hands on him, the man made a dart, whirled and snatched open the door leading into the room where three men dressed as ushers were stuffing currency into canvas bags. One of them made a swift movement with his right hand—a hand that knew how to handle an automatic. A vicious red tongue leaped from the barrel of the weapon and pointed straight at the breast of Karl Kruger. With a slow, painful movement, Kruger rose to his toes, twisted, and fell backward—dead.

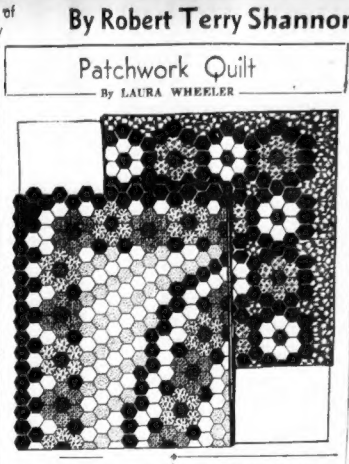
Patchwork Quilt

By LAURA WHEELER



Honeycomb No. 433

THE HEXAGON one-patch, so popular with the needlewoman of generations past, can be used to form radically different quilts. Two very effective arrangements are given in all detail in this pattern. Though structurally the same, the variation in design is achieved through the distribution of the materials. The one shows a wreath and floral border arrangement, while the other is a repetition of a group of hexagons that can first be formed into a block and the blocks then attached. This one-patch type of quilt—made entirely of patches cut from the same pattern piece—was the first attempt of the needlewoman of the past to make an orderly arrangement of patch pieces, early quilts having been of the crazy-quilt type.

The pattern comes to you with complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c, for a pattern for this design to the Boston Evening American Needlecraft Department, 82 8th ave., New York City.

GOD IS DEFINED IN SCIENCE LECTURE

In response to the oft-repeated question "What Is God?" A. Hervey-Bathurst, C. S. B., of London, England, in a lecture delivered this noon in the Colonial Theatre under the auspices of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, said:

"On page 465 of Science and Health Mary Baker Eddy gives the following definition of God. 'God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite mind, spirit, soul, principle, life, truth, love.' This God is the only creator and He created all that was made, as the Bible states. Must it not follow then that, since God's creation is the only creation and it is good, we have a very erroneous concept of that creation, including man, so long as we believe that the creation of God includes evil, sickness, destruction, fear, vice or death? Can man, the image and likeness or reflection of God, be subject to what God does not include? The answer is emphatically—no, he is not and never was. This may be considered a bold statement to make, but it is nevertheless true, because what is true about the nature of God must be equally true about the nature of His reflection, man.

"Then we see that you and I in our true selfhood or identity are just as much the children of God now as we always have been and ever will be."

The lecturer, who is a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, was introduced by Gordon V. Comer, C. S., First Reader in The Mother Church.

WE MEDITATED ON THE PEACE and dignity of the past as we sauntered through the historic homes of Cambridge yesterday afternoon which were thrown open to the public for the benefit of the unemployed architects . . .

No. 159 Brattle st., on that broad thoroughfare which must have rung with the music of horses' hooves in the grand old days of 1860, is the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Emerson, and cheery Mrs. Emerson was at the door to greet the visitors to show them the points of interest in the house, which is one of the oldest in New England . . . a charming, comfortable mansion which has been kept very much as it was originally designed . . .

MRS. R. A. CRAM

The fragrance of musk and the scent of hundreds of wood fires which had been in the old hearth hung over the low-ceilinged rooms . . . Hepplewhite and Adam antiques soft-glowed with pride at this, their exhibition day; chairs of beautiful design, elaborately carved old chests, sturdy but graceful desks and tables, all seemed at home and safe in this charming interior . . .

In the drawing room a large case, covered with glass, was displayed by Mrs. Emerson as she lovingly showed rare and ancient books, priceless beyond words, of William Blake's and other artists; books illustrated with rare designs and colorings, and illuminated with golden script . . . Songs of Innocence, The Wedding of Earth and Heaven, a gem of the Mohammedan Koran in Arabic, beautifully bound. Our hostess remarked that she would rather part with almost anything on earth than these wonderful volumes . . . we felt a little awed as we looked at them, as though we were in the presence of living things.

Chic in Black With Touches of White

IN THE DINING ROOM WE FOUND a group of ladies of the committee with portfolios spread before them, taking chances on the most fascinating array of watercolors and etchings . . . Mrs. Ralph Adams Cram was chic in black with touches of white, Mrs. Ralph Doane's Titian hair was set off by a large black picture hat, Mrs. William Coffin was in the popular blue and white of the mode, and in the russet tones Mrs. John Gunther looked very smart indeed.

Over in a corner a smiling face was presiding over a tea set, only she, too, was taking chances on it, not serving tea . . . It was Mrs. Henry Shepley, attractive wife of Henry Shepley, architect, who designed the New York Medical Center buildings, the models for which were so enthusiastically viewed at the Junior League this past month . . . She laughingly told us that Mr. Shepley is getting to be almost as well known for the George Washington tea sets (which have been on sale for the unemployed architects' fund) as for his architectural triumphs . . . his friends are calling him "Tea Set Henry." We hope yesterday was our lucky day as we took a chance on a tea set . . .

We left this hospitable roof to view the next house, Elmwood, the James Russell Lowell house, now the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley Porter of Brattle st. . . . a magnificent three-storied Colonial yellow mansion, set well back from the street, and arched with ancient elm trees . . .

Mrs. Porter and her assistants wore the costumes of the periods of ye olden days . . . Mrs. Porter's was a softly-shaded rose taffeta with ruffled train and wearing on her dark hair a pearled headress which caught her "waterfall" in its silken meshes . . . Mrs. Ralph Gray received at the foot of the broad staircase in a gown worn at the Prince of Wales ball in 1860, cloud-blue moire festooned with rare ivory lace . . . her softly curled hair garlanded with silver riband and pale pink roses . . .

Granddaughter of Famous Poet

PRESIDING OVER THE SILVER PUNCH bowl was beautiful Mrs. Seth Comstock, in yellowed taffeta en bouffant and high comb and mantilla . . . she was caught by our camera serving the cup that cheers to pretty Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Jones whose golden satin basque gown trimmed with periwinkle blue velvet was vastly becoming . . .

In bottle-green velvet and ostrich plumed hat, Miss Lucille Umbreit whispered secrets to a swain in the panelled music room where Mrs. Lois B. Rantoul, granddaughter of the famous poet, James Russell Lowell, in opalescent silk and gay passementarie displayed rare books to the throng of visitors which poured through the rooms . . .

Dark-eyed Mrs. John Buttrick (Helen Merriam and daughter of Mrs. Gray) was a belle of the stately "sixties" in canary satin and pearl and gold headdress, another gown which bravely boasts attending the Prince of Wales' ball . . .

The scenic wall papers and rare old furniture, the high-posted beds and gilded mirrors reflecting soft candle-light, carried us back to the days when femininity and gallantry were not merely words and people lived gracefully, loving their homes and their friends and hospitality was a thing of beauty.

Glimpsed Mrs. Katherine Crosby Choate and her small daughter, Sylvia, with Mrs. S. Van Rensseler Crosby, arriving through the white gateway to have a cup of tea at Elmwood . . . hundreds of cars stopped all through the afternoon until twilight settled like a benediction over a poet's memory . . .

Milton Girl Will Wed Francis C. Welch

The engagement is announced of Miss Ellen Cushing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Cushing of Canton ave., Milton, to Mr. Francis Clarke Welch, also of Milton, son of Mrs. Roger Wolcott, Jr., of Milton, and Mr. E. Bohler Welch of Louisburg sq.

Miss Cushing is a graduate of Milton Academy, and was presented by her parents in 1930, and elected a member of the Junior League and the Vincent Club.

Mr. Welch attended St. Mark's Preparatory school and will be graduating from Harvard this June. He is a member of the Hasty Pudding and the Institute of 1770, also of the Spee Clubs. No date has been set for the wedding.

Society Notes

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM H. KIRKBRIDE of Beacon st., with their daughter are planning to leave early in June for Santa Barbara, Cal., for the summer months. Mr. and Mrs. Ronald de L. Kirkbride of New York are also going to Santa Barbara for the summer season. The William Kirkbrides have only recently returned from Jamaica.

A TEA IS BEING HELD tomorrow at 2 to mark the opening of the last of a series of exhibitions given at the Brittany Shop which is maintained to assist the work of training and sending out attendant nurses. The members of the board who will pour are Mrs. Elliott C. Cutler and Mrs. Chandler Clifford, while other members, Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, Mrs. Dudley N. Hartt and Mrs. Charles A. Newhall, will receive.

ARRIVING TODAY IN NEW YORK aboard the Rex is Miss Ella Saltonstall, who has been over in Europe for two months, spending most of her time in Italy.

New Styles of the Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

MRS. WARD PAINE OF Hammond st., Chestnut Hill, was hostess at a gay and festive dinner before the one night with horses at Boston Garden. Among her guests were Mr. and Mrs. Winton Brown, Mrs. Brown in a decollette black and white print frock with a ruffled collar that acted also as sleeves.

Mr. and Mrs. Stepherson also attended the dinner. Mrs. Stepherson looking the last word in chic in a brown net nicely fitted frock with puffy sleeves.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Floyd were there. Mrs. Floyd in black, matching her dark, flashing eyes and wavy, dark hair coiled low in her neck.

Mrs. Paine wore a white lace frock, crossed lace shoulder straps and fitting her petite figure in a svelt manner.

Later in the evening we glimpsed Mrs. Albert Burrage, Sr., looking distinguished in black velvet with a string of gorgeous pearls and an ermine trimmed black velvet evening coat. In her party was her lovely granddaughter, Mrs. Forester Clarke. Mrs. Burrage was in a modishly cut black crepe. Her auburn hair coiled low in her neck very picturesque and lovely she looked in her sweeping velvet cape.

Mrs. Russell Burrage was radiant in bright orange, very becoming to her dark, good looks, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Burrage, sitting in the front row of the Burrage box, were intensely interested in the activities of the evening. Mrs. Burrage wore a graceful white frock, becoming to her piquant good looks.

Mr. Hugh Bancroft sat with the Burrages accompanied by that attractive young lady to whom he has lately announced his engagement. She was in white, which is so becoming to her.

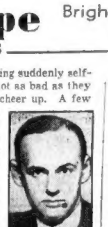
Brighter Baseball to Drown Care Suggested

By GILBERT SELDES



GILBERT SELDES

The British have a strange habit of becoming suddenly self-conscious about their own dullness—which is not as bad as they think it is—and instantly they take steps to cheer up. A few years ago they had a Brighter London season and next week they plan to give up seven days to Enjoyment Week. Except for running the Derby, which occurs in that week, none of the items is the sort of thing I'd choose myself for a high old time; but to a British temperament a big display of fireworks, trooping the colors and listening to the opera seem sufficient. For those who are hard to please a pageant, a procession (which I am afraid will be a parade and nothing more) and even a carnival are offered. Public festivities of this sort send me whimpering to the darkest room in the house; but if London will be made glad I am in no position to criticize. The object seems to me worthy. The Lord Mayor says that the parade and the procession and the pageant will have the effect of getting people to take a brighter view of conditions; he implies that things are not as bad as they seem. As Punch would say, "They never were."

The ancient Greeks treated themselves to a sporting event every four years, to dramatic contests annually and to a bacchanalian festival, a downright orgy as they called it without shame, when the grass was green. I have not heard that these performances were arranged to take men's thoughts away from economic depressions, and, in fact, have absorbed the idea that the Greeks thought enjoyment was part of the desirable life of a citizen even in good times. We are much wiser than the Greeks—the proof being that our depression is a bigger one than they ever could have managed—and if we are going to have fun we'll have it in spite of our own bankruptcy.

Just how to import and adapt this English idea is a problem. Chicago is in the lucky position of being all set; the fair is there, even if they do call it a Century of Progress. The carnival spirit will rise. But what will Boston do? Ask the Harvard boys to cut up publicly for Class Day? Since the Beer Parade New York hasn't had any real excitements. Will Mayor O'Brien oblige?

Baseball

Perhaps we had better use the material we already have at hand. The best way to induce Americans to take a brighter view of farm relief and economic regulation and gold standards would be to make the baseball season exciting. I may be wrong, but I find it below average. There was a pitched battle a few week ago—but it was a fist-fighting—not baseball.

It is not likely that my personal prejudices will be consulted in the matter, but I would like to put them on record. I do not care for the way the rises and falls of our currency are reported in the press. You get the impression that the foreign correspondents and financial reporters have been nursing an envious grudge against the sports department for years, and now they have their chance for revenge. So that operations as complicated as any in the history of the world come to us in the simple terms of a prize fight. The dollar socks the franc; the franc leads with a hook to the jaw (if the hooks can be led to the jaw—I am not sure).

In the Pink

There is more truth in the sporting account than usual, for the dollar is obviously being taken for a ride, and other currencies are being deliberately managed to their own advantage. Staying at home, nursing the few dollars we possess, we wonder whether England and France would really like to see complete financial disaster come over us, whether it would really be to their advantage to see the dollar go the way of the old German mark, and whether, in view of our enormous resources, they think, as a practical matter, it can be arranged.

On the other hand, the prizing description is deceptive. We know pretty surely that the fundamental resources of our country have not dwindled by 20 per cent in the last three weeks. We are suffering from the closing of banks which ought never to have opened, perhaps; but we are a hundred times more capable of weathering the storm than we were six months ago.

I would like to see every movement of currency expressed in reasonable terms. Once in a while you read that the prospect of America cutting down the value of its minted coin has led to a flurry on the money exchange. But usually the explanation is wanting. We do not hear that the franc has risen because the French think they have more coal, wheat, lumber and leather than America—for the excellent reason that it isn't so. And we are only beginning to hear that every nation is out for itself and intends to look to its own prosperity first—at least until June 12, when a conference, which threatens to run six months, will begin in London. You can set Dec. 12, then, as the millennium.

BOOKS---A Number of Things

By Charles Hanson Towne

When one thinks of the number of poets there are who cannot read their own poems aloud with any degree of intelligence, perhaps one should not wonder at young men and women just out of college who are unable to go through a prose paragraph without faltering, mispronouncing and having no idea of the meaning of simple punctuation marks.

Is it possible that in the early grades at school children are no longer required to read from their primers? We were not only compelled to read aloud before the class on many occasions when I was a youngster, but we were told exactly how to hold the book, with the thumb and little finger placed firmly on the page, the other fingers pressed upon the cover. Our first effort must have been laughable; but gradually we learned when to drop our voices, when to raise them, when to pause, and when to proceed rapidly.

These were not exactly elocution classes, God forbid, but serious lessons in pronunciation. And I can remember many boys who developed into fine readers. Likewise we committed to memory innumerable patriotic poems, and long stretches of "Hiawatha," which we were warned not to turn into a sing-song recital.

But if you try out the average high school graduate, or even a college graduate, today, you will be surprised at the lack of knowledge among them. They drone. They drag. They refuse to lift their voices. The result is a dull monotone, a desultory rendition that gets on the nerves of the listener. If, by chance, they strike words like "mayoralty" they are lost. Nine times out of ten they give it five syllables. They are defeated before such a word as "dirigible," now in common use; and if they come to "monosyllabic" they are completely undone and dismayed.

No little of this ignorance may be the result of the deplorable efforts of radio announcers—grown men who should know better, and who are confused and confounded, for all their secret rehearsals, when they approach a foreign composer's name, or any word that is the least out of the ordinary. Are there no coaches for these men? The curious part of it is that they have plenty of time for preparation; yet they are terrified when they speak of Rachmaninoff, Chopin throws them into verbal convulsions, and they even hesitate over Wagner. A little practice, and they would leap these hurdles with ease; but with bland assurance they rush on, somehow sliding through, and the night is made hideous by their inexcusable blunders.

One often considers how most people read, and with what profit, when they are alone. Probably they skim, and lightly skip when certain words annoy them, or try their intelligence too greatly. But it is more likely that they do not read at all, and are happy, now that the talkies have come, that there are few captions for them to follow, slowly and painstakingly, on the screen.

DRESSES CHOSEN FOR HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION VARY IN LENGTH, FORMALITY

"School of Clothes" Suggests the Old Rule of Simplicity Be Taken Seriously

By MARGARET MATSON

And now graduation is just around the corner! Yesterday morning, bright and early, we met with a large group of high school senior girls and their mothers and discussed graduation clothes—or rather, they listened and we talked—at their request. Perhaps it would not be amiss were we to repeat here some of the things that were said.

First in regard to one's choice of graduation dress, we believe that the old rule of simplicity which we've tossed in Youth's face these many years should be taken very seriously. It's a great temptation with so many adorable evening dresses around, to choose one of them in preference to the shorter, less formal frocks which are designed for the occasion. Unless the graduation is in the evening, or unless the class has decided to wear long dresses, lengths, we feel, should range anywhere between nine to 12 inches from the floor. If the class wishes to appear very neat and uniform, it might be wise for them to decide upon a certain type of dress—that is sports, simple daytime, or afternoon—and a certain length. Then all the hems would be even. If, however, the choice of dress is unlimited, then the length must be unlimited also. Silk crepes seem to be a favorite among the girls and they are made into little sports frocks for the most part. Embroidered batistes and organdies, mousseline de soie, organza, silk or cotton pique, linens, and the simple white silks and sheers are all good suggestions. Some of the most enticing are the fresh, crisp organdies, embroidered or plain.

If one wishes to be particularly economical, the sports type of frock, sometimes with a boxy or swagger coat to match, is an excellent choice, as the possibilities for wearing it after graduation are most numerous. And there are dozens of ways in which one may add color if one wishes. Hats, scarves, and gloves of pique or linen in pastel colors; colored jewelry, colored handbags matching the hat, scarf, gloves or shoes; plaid taffetas or gingham or checked, striped or printed cottons or silks. Numerous ways.

As for shoes and stockings, we suggest nude stockings with plain white shoes rather than any other choice. We suggest, too, that the girls be ever so careful in selecting their undergarments. And though wearing a girdle may be unusual for many of them, it might be well to include some little two-way stretch, or light-weight, unboned affair in the underwear that is chosen. Shoulder straps should be kept to a minimum—one or two—and should be secured in order that they do not fall or show untidily through the sheer frocks. As for hats, coats, and gloves, they may be as one pleases, for, as a rule, they will not be worn in the procession. Jewelry should be very simple. No matter how much one intends to wear with the frock after graduation day, it is best to keep it, also, at a minimum, just for the one occasion.

And perhaps before we close we might give a suggestion or two to the boys as well. White flannels and dark blue coats with white shirts, blue ties, and black, white, or black and white shoes seems the best choice. If this is not possible, then dark suits as uniform in color as can be managed.

This is the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CLOTHES. If you have questions regarding graduation clothes, please address them to Margaret Matson.

Devil's Food Is Cake Fit for the Angels

By MARTHA LEE

WANT TO MAKE friend husband purr prettily? Then let him sink a teeth into a Devil's Food Cake—(not meaning to draw any inferences, of course) such as we made in the Martha Lee Cooking School this week.

Being an honest woman, I'll admit right here and now that the recipe is not original with me—it came from my good friend, Mrs. Frances Northcross, long to be remembered in Boston town for her splendid demonstration-lecture at our Statler Cooking School last October (and we believe that we can promise you that Mrs. Northcross will be here in the Hub again next October).

Devil's Food Cake

½ cup sugar.
½ cup hot coffee.
1 cup buttermilk.
1 teaspoon baking powder.
2 teaspoons vanilla.
1 egg.
1 cup sugar.
½ cup shortening.
1 egg and 1 egg yolk.
2 cups flour.
1 teaspoon soda.

Add coffee to the melted chocolate. Blend ½ cup sugar and egg. Pour melted chocolate and coffee on egg mixture and cook 5 minutes in double boiler, remove. Cool. Cream 1 cup sugar and ½ cup shortening, add 1 egg and egg yolk, beat for 3 minutes. Dissolve soda in buttermilk. Put two mixtures together and add alternately the buttermilk and flour. Place in greased and floured pan and bake in oven 350 F. about 25 minutes. Makes 2 large layers. One tbsp. of lemon juice added to batter gives the cake a red tinge.

NEVER-FAIL ICING

2 cups sugar
2 egg whites
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2-3 cup cold water
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. vanilla

Boil syrup to soft ball stage (238 to 240 deg.) or until it spins a thread. Beat egg whites stiff, adding baking powder and lemon juice and beat over hot water until the icing crusts the edge of the bowl. Allow to cool before putting on cake. Add vanilla. If too hard, add 1 tbsp. hot water until it is the right consistency for spreading.

Gingerbread With Sauce

2-3 cup shortening.
2-3 cup sugar.
2-3 cup molasses.
2-3 cup sour milk.
3½ cups flour.
1 cup raisins.
1 tbsp. ginger.
¼ tsp. cinnamon.
1 tsp. soda, dissolved in the milk.
½ cup hot coffee.
1 tsp. baking powder.
2 eggs.

Blend shortening, sugar and eggs until light and fluffy. Sift flour, then measure, reserve ½ cup flour for raisins. Sift with salt, baking powder and spices. Add alternately dry ingredients and coffee with sugar and shortening mixture. Add floured raisins. Dissolve soda in sour milk, add molasses, stir into batter and beat well. Pour into greased pan and bake in 325 F. oven for 30 to 40 minutes.

SAUCE

1 cup sugar.
1 cup water.
1 tbsp. butter.
Spices to taste.

Mix the above ingredients in bowl in which the gingerbread was mixed. The remaining batter will both flavor and thicken the sauce. Cook sauce over a low flame until sufficiently thick. Serves eight.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

The Hostess

THE HOSTESS always rises when she greets a guest. She rises, shakes hands with the guest and says some gracious words of welcome.

Also, when the guest is about to depart, the hostess rises, shakes hands with the guest, and says something like this: "Thank you so much for coming," or "It was such a pleasure to me to have you come."

Gift for Baby

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper to buy a small gift for the baby shower and a large gift after the baby comes, or should I get a large gift for the shower and none after the baby arrives? F.

I wish that I could answer you as definitely as I know you want to be answered, but no one can make a definite answer about the giving of gifts except the giver herself. It's all as you feel inclined to do. Of course it's expected that, if you go to the shower, you will take a shower-present, but this may be as small or as consequential as you wish it to be. If you are planning to give two gifts, it might be well to make the shower gift the more important one so that the mother will know what her treasures are for the Great Treasure to come.

Take Them as a Gift

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

While visiting in a distant city recently I was entertained by some of my cousins, and several weeks ago I received a letter containing some snap-shots that we had taken one day while I was there. How shall I accept them? Shall I offer to pay for them, return them and ask for the negatives, or merely thank my cousin for them? F.

Don't do anything but thank her for them. I am sure that she would be distressed if you tried to pay for them, for they are, of course, a present to you, and she would want to have you treat them as you would any other kind of present.

Ankle Sprains From Bad Posture

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

DURING THE winter months when pavements and roads are wet and slippery, sprained ankle is a common accident. Even when snow and ice have long disappeared sprained ankle continues to be an everyday occurrence.

Dr. Copeland

Some persons seem to be susceptible to this accident. This may be explained by individual weakness of the muscles, joints and ligaments of the ankle. The accident may occur because of carelessness in walking, or the wearing of shoes with little support to the ankle. It is a common complaint of women who have weak ankles yet wear high heels because of the dictates of "Dame Fashion."

I am often asked what is the difference between a "wrench" and a "sprain." There is really no difference. A sprain is a wrenched joint caused by a sudden twist or pull. It is an extremely painful affliction. At times the pain is so severe that complete rest in bed is necessary for its relief.

A mild sprain may allow the individual to hobble about with the aid of a cane. Too often a more serious injury of the ankle is mistaken for a wrench or sprain. For example, a person may injure his ankle, complain of pain and ignore the accident. He calls it a sprain and continues to walk on the injured ankle. If neglected, permanent injury and deformity may occur.

If you are subject to wrenched ankles, I would suggest that you wear an elastic anklet. This may be made of leather or of rubber. Do not wear high heeled shoes. The shoe should be broad in the toe, straight on the inner sides, fit snugly in the arch, loose at the toe and have a low, broad heel.

Too many persons do not walk properly. When you walk, draw in your abdomen, hold your chest out, shoulders up and square, and chin straight forward. Relax as you walk, and above all, do not slouch. Bear in mind that sprained ankle and other complaints can often be traced to faulty posture.

Health Queries

T. E. M. Q.—As soon as the weather becomes a little colder, my hands become cold and blue. Coming indoors later being out in the cold they turn red and seem to tingle. I am apparently in good health otherwise. My hands are a constant source of annoyance—I am a stenographer.

A.—This condition is due to a circulatory disturbance. Massage and application of heat should help to some extent. Improve your circulation. Take more exercise. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

The Marry-Go-Round; Tips on Loving

By HELEN ROWLAND

WOMEN have written volumes of advice on how to make a husband happy, but no man has ever run a column on how to make a wife happy. Perhaps a man figures that just having his shoes in the closet and his hat on the hall rack ought to make any reason-ble woman happy.

* * *

Helen Rowland

Some men are just naturally emotional pan-handlers, who are always looking for a "handout" of affection from one girl after another, but don't want a life job as the lover of any woman.

* * *

Divorce, says Reno Ruth, is no answer to the problem of marriage. It is merely the eraser which wipes the slate clean—and exposes it to a couple of brand new problems.

* * *

When a woman deceives the man she loves, she always feels a twinge of conscience. But when a man deceives the woman he loves, he merely feel annoyed at her for putting him to the trouble of having to invent an alibi.

* * *

To a woman first love comes but once. But to a man every new love is the "first love" while it lasts—and all the others before it seem just like "practice."

* * *

"Of course, the nicest men are always married," says Reno Ruth. "But cheer up—not for long to the same woman."

Foolish Pride in Boy, Says Miss Fairfax

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a young man regularly for six months. The other night he told me he wasn't coming to see me any more he said he couldn't afford to take me anywhere because he is a miser. I told him that didn't matter to me, but he couldn't see my way. How can I win him back? For I know he cares for me. If he should come to see me now should I act? And don't you think friends should stand by each other, when they are trying work and feeling extra bad? MARY.

Dear Mary—Indeed, I do. Mary, and think it very foolish pride on the boy's part not to come to see you because he can't afford to take. Our grandparents did their courting under the old-fashioned whale-oil lamp in the family parlor, and they made a better job of it than we are doing, today by the way people now go to the divorce courts over every little spat. Also, spring is coming and what is nicer than a walk with one's beloved?

Announcing a Secret Marriage

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have a very difficult affair that needs your kind advice. To-date, I was secretly married to many ago. No one knows of it. Now we have our home made and wish to announce it. We both have loads of friends, and we realize that it must be done in the correct manner. My fiancé is in business. How should his firm be told of this? Thank you, and please know I will appreciate anything you do to help me. LEE.

Dear Lee: Better have your husband tell the members of his firm that you were married on such and such a date. To your more intimate friends, write personal letters and give the date and place of marriage. If your circle of friends is very large, you can send out the usual engraved announcement that Miss Mary Smith and Mr. Thomas Jones were married on June third, 1933.

Pleasant Voice an Asset to Beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

A PLEASING speaking voice is a beauty asset of the first water. There are few really unpleasant voices; those that irritate the ear are voices that are not used properly. There's too much volume or a monotonous droning or whining, too much harping on the same key. As for the shouters and shrillers, they just lack manners.

TO MAKE eye shadows divinely effective, finish up with a faint black line along the roots of the eyelashes. Get a dark brown eyebrow pencil, sharpen to a point, use a steady hand and a magnifying mirror. Not so good maybe for the cruel light of day, but more or less enchanting when the bright lights are on, and the merry evening party is going full blast.

THOUGH the belt line is being lowered on new frocks, it won't be safe to stop the war against midway thickness. Muscles at the waistline should be strong and resilient if the seeker after beauty is to escape middle age spread. Place hands on hips, lift up the toes, draw the torso up high, come down on the heels. Thirty times night and morning.

BE DOUBTFUL of the friend who tells you to use a firm tooth-brush and heavy movements when gums bleed. They are irritated and spongy because they are burdened with devastating barnacles known as tartar. This growth must be removed by the dentist. It is a hard, chalky substance that the toothbrush won't dislodge.

KIDNEY SUFFERING Curbed

"I could not sleep, stoop over nor rise up without great pain. Have been taking Foley Pills 1 mo. and it is all gone. I can sleep all night and have no pain." —Mrs. Black.

It is cases like this—not one or 100, but thousands—which bring men and women past 50 to Foley Pills for quick relief from the miseries of nightrising, painful and frequent bladder action, swollen ankles and feet, puffed eye-lids, pain and nervous cramp, poor appetite, indigestion, loss of weight, no pep, backache and failing strength due to faulty kidney elimination.

Druggists Here Offer Foley Pills on 10 DAYS' TRIAL

Send to druggist now for wonderful Foley Pills on 10 days' trial. Watch kidney action improve—see pep and nervous ness—sleep sounder, eat heartier and feel ten younger. If not more than satisfied with your improvement, return empty package and get your deposit back. What could be fairer?

How to Wash Out Your Kidneys

Your kidneys purify your blood by straining out one acid and other poisons. You must pass 3 pints of water daily.

If you pass less, take Foley Pills and see how they wash these acid poisons right out of your body and make you feel young and glorious." Make one order.

HOW TO LOSE 3 POUNDS IN A DAY!

THEN—rip off Fat 4 to 7 Pounds A WEEK—on a Full Stomach!

Modern science now makes the fat person's dream of bliss come true—you eat your fill and yet grow thin! Discoveries have been made that make taking off fat a joy.

No starvation; but a full stomach all the time. No more exercise than now. Yet you lose as much as a pound a day—seven full pounds a week. And the very day you start, you look pounds lighter than you really are. For every sign of that puffy, bloated look about the face and eyes, overweight people have, is made to disappear.

All You Do

You do just two simple things: Take a teaspoonful of ordinary Jad Salts in a glass of water before breakfast every morning. And make two small changes in your diet. That is all.

The first glass of the Jad Salts you take often rips off as much as three pounds in weight—reduces the moisture weight of your body that much. AND—within ONE HOUR—banishes that "fat look," puff and bloat, from the face, so that you look pounds lighter than you are; ends that "lion-light-in-the-clothes" feeling that you have.

You eat your fill regularly. Never know a hunger moment. The little changes in eating that you make are explained in a little folder you find inside the package of Jad Salts you get. You merely substitute lean meats for fat; eat extra quantities of most vegetables and salads—and cast down a bit on fats and starches.

4 to 7 Pounds Gone in Week

If you are normally overweight, you can lose as much as a pound a day this way; never be hungry and feel better than you have for years. The every day dose of Jad Salts does this by keeping you fit and active —and making you look that way. The dietary change rips off the fat. Soon the graceful lines of slenderness supplant the coarse ones of fat; the personal charm only a slender person has returns, and life takes on a new meaning.

Try this way. You can get Jad Salts at any drug store in two sizes —large and small. Just ask for ordinary Jad Salts.

Note particularly—Jad Salts is urged purely as a poison-banishing agent—to banish puffiness and bloat from the face and body and to eliminate body moisture—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work.

STOCKS BOOM, WITH TRADING VOLUME BIG

New York, May 11—The stock market in Wall St. boomed one to around six points today, reaching new high levels on another outburst of speculative enthusiasm.

TURN TO RAILS

The speculative impulse shifted to the rails in the early afternoon and they set the pace for another thrust by the list. Atlantic Coast Line was the sensation while the whole carrier list surged to new highs for the year.

U. S. Steel stepped into the time-light with a rise of around a point when it crossed 30 and set a new high record since last September.

Declaration of the regular $1.50 dividend by Union Pacific was another piece of good news for the carrier group, and brought a quick rise of around 5 points.

Trading in the bond division was broad and active, numerous gains of 1 to 3 points being recorded in the face of substantial profit-taking. U. S. Governments were strong.

Large blocks were fairly frequent in the early trading, running as high as 15,000 shares. The major transfer was in United Corp. Profit-taking was readily absorbed at intervals throughout the day.

STEEL GIVES SIGNAL

The signal for the bullish activities was U. S. Steel common's ability to go through the stubborn 30 level. This was accomplished by a burst of buying and the whole list responded by going to new highs.

Allied Chemical continued spectacular with an uprush of more than 4 points. Westinghouse, Western Union and Eastman Kodak were other strong spots.

Columbian Carbon surged forward after absorbing profit-taking on yesterday's uprush. Owens Illinois Glass went to a new high for several years. Du Pont was taken up in huge volume.

Business improvement, as well as constructive developments in the international situation continued to provide the background for the boom. Another impetus was the expectation that President Roosevelt would make the inflation bill law today.

Final enactment of the farm relief-inflation bill, together with continued reports of improved business and gains in employment, kept speculative enthusiasm at high pitch. While speculative strength develope din European currencies, as against the dollar, foreign exchange fluctuations were more restrained, and the share and staple markets evidently no longer needed declarations of depreciating dollars to keep prices on the advance.

While some fears had been expressed that the length of time taken to enact the farm relief bill would prevent prompt restoration this year, it was pointed out that adverse weather evidently had accomplished this already in such staples as wheat and cotton.

BOND MARKET IS ADVANCED

New York, May 11—The bond market displayed further general strength in trading today, with specialist rail and public service corporation issues particularly prominent on the advance.

Gains in the carriers ranged from 1 to 2 points, with Southern Pacific 4½s of '81 up 1½ points at 83½; Southern Railway general 4s up 1 at 39½; Nickel Plate 6½s up 1 at 97; New York Central 4½s up 1 at 83½, and Rock Island 4½s A up 1 at 30.

Leaders in the domestic list were Otis Steel 6s which spurted 2¼ points to 60; American & Foreign Power 5s up 1 at 42, and Postal Telegraph 5s up 2½ at 39.

U. S. Governments extended their gains, headed by the Treasury 3¼s, which was up 11-32 at 99.21, and the Treasury 3s which was 10-32 higher at 98.5.

Foreign governments did little, with a gain of a point in the German 7s to 62, offset by a dip of ½ in the German 5½s to 42.

High grade utilities were active and firm.

Grain Prices Rise in Chicago Market

Chicago, May 11—Faced by sensational bullish crop figures, plus enactment of the Roosevelt agriculture and inflation bill, grain prices jumped today. The government crop report was construed by traders as indicating the nearest a failure that wheat in this country had ever known at this season.

Opening 1⅞-2¼ cents higher, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started 1½-2 cents up and subsequently held near the initial limits.

Walworth Prices Up

Roosevelt Has No 'Brain Trust'; President Does His Own Thinking

He Uses Close Associates for 'Cruiser Service' to Find Facts; It's a Job for Youth

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Diplomat and author and former U. S. Ambassador to Italy

Copyright, 1933 by Universal Service, Inc.

Washington, May 11—There is no "brain trust."

The myth that the White House is guided by a huddle of young advisers organized into a "wall around the President" was exploded today.

There is full authority for the statement that since the inauguration, no three of the reputed members of the brain trust have ever met to cook a plan or to serve a plan to the President. Some of the "brain trust" members have not even seen some of the others.

There is equal authority for the assertion the work of the young men whom he has tucked into government office or discovered among the new deal crew is not the work of an advisory council. The President desired to avoid any advisory council which would be a target for his enemies.

He uses these rather youngish men—the Moleys, the Tugwells, the Warburgs, the Berles, the Dewsons and the Bullitts, the Achesons and the veteran secretary, Col. Howe, as they happen to suit, to fill specific jobs and individuals as independent intellectual scout cruisers.

ALWAYS READY FOR CALL

In the immense new sea of ideas to which the new deal opens the gates the fellows in the mental foragers always under steam.

It is absurd, say those who know the machinery, to suppose that elder statesmen could serve that purpose. Good counselors with ripe men may be, especially those who have kept themselves flexible rather than gone hard and fast into worldly fame. Certainly old men are not equipped to make the voyages of intellectual discovery toward which the President sends the increasing circle of his reporter staff, that changing and growing staff, who, like reporters of the press, have as part of their job the selection of what is hot from what is cold, and what is useless from what is worth while. These scout cruisers help to increase his range and multiply his eyes and ears, not subtract from them.

At the moment such an announcement of the truth as to the mythical brain trust has a vast significance in the country and to the failure of its citizens to meet the emergency we are now in. The reasons for this are plain to any one who has had long experience with the White House and also opportunities to observe the maneuvering around it from the outside.

The first of these reasons is our well grounded fear that any President may get into the hands of a White House pet, or into the center of a ring whose members lick their lips over the thought of power and publicity. Abroad, they are familiar with these groups. They call them cabals.

WORK ON THE WEAK

Around weak rulers these men weave their web of flattery. We repel invaders of their secret, sacred ring, they impute to all truth tellers who fall short of their own flattery, the mean design of evil or fair critics. Any leader has to watch scrupulously for attempts of such men-every human may attempt and not necessarily villainous attempts—to nail down a complete monopoly of his own ear, and for any attempts develop now they will exhibit the same old familiar tactics. They will tell the President that any who come with good tidings are seeking office or favors while those who come with ill-welcome truth are sorehead. Several Presidents poring over clippings at night have read press comment made in good faith and for an aid, as abuse; many of them in the exercise of office by day have slain faithful friends with the flash of resentment. Even when some such President may have sent for men to advise them it has been with the hope that the advice would be only applause. One Senator used to say:

"The President has sent for me to tell me I'm to have lunch."

Roosevelt still remains unsurrounded. He says he is determined to speak to the country like a brother and that he wants the country to talk to him like a brother.

NO THINKING MACHINE

This desire raises the serious side of any myth that there is a brain trust. For the myth of a brain trust, for the myth of a the President together with the silly concept of a thinking machine is going to get us out of our troubles by brewing a witches' cauldron.

The denial of the existence of a brain trust is important because we do not need any such thing for our President; it is vastly more important because as the President sees it many now too overboard the idea that he is any miracle man surrounded by young alchemists who can turn every pound of dilemmas into a pound of gold.

The man who would not lie about the country's attitude today would be the one who said to the President, "No fair you've worked your shirt off for us. We elected you to attack and not to defend, and you've done it. But what must we do?"

Everyone can know that there are no brain trusts in America who pamper us by preaching the rights of mankind, those who make us flabby by telling us to do all the work themselves, and finally those who make leadership virile by denying of us the performance of our obligation. The myth of a brain trust, because it tends to take responsibility from us, adds to the one sad lack in all the President has said into so many responsive ears as he talked to us like a brother.

For if we realize the President is no mobilizer or any miracle brain trust, but a mobilizer of all of us, then the country would probably say to him like a brother in the war period, "Mr. President, we heed the lash of your awakened convictions and of our own to make us take a second hand in this fight for America."

WE NEED SERVICE

"Those of us who can stand it need to be drafted for unpaid services. We need our own sacrifices to put down on the common pile according to our capacity to give them.

"We are still soft, Mr. President.

"Put some muscles on our nation, get the qualities of more patience through affliction but for joint adventure gaily undertaken.

"We are not fortified to bear this rag of our depression on our backs. We want to shake it with our teeth.

"We are tired of love of handouts, political possessions, raids on our Treasury, the excesses of our spoiled and coddled members. We are weary with the hope that tomorrow will be only just as good as the 'good old days' of our self-devotion of 1929.

"We are tired of fixing a whole foreign world that over and over has regilded our crumbling spelling. After all we only apply for the job of fixing the world's affairs with a letter of recommendation which says that we have mismanaged our own.

"We are weary with our own softness and our conceits and our infidelities.

"Where is the old love, Mr. President—the love of country and service to her? Make us go back to her without bugles, over the hard stones and upon our knees."

Gossip About People You Know

LYMAN HAPPY NOW

Frank Lyman, commissioner of public works, is delighted with the new state building near the North Station into which the department is moving. The exception of some interior furnishings, the commissioner says, the building is complete. The registry of motor vehicles is due to move in next week.

BENEATH THE DOME

The liquor commission wants to stay in the State House. First assured that they would have part of the quarters vacated by the public works department, the commission was later told to get ready to go into the new building. Chairman William Hevey of the commission has taken the matter up with the governor.

ONE WAY TO CLICK

Perseverence apparently has its reward in the executive office. Many of those appointed to minor positions, had, prior to their appointments, constant daily visitors to the executive suite. The strategy seems to be a stick around until you give you something to get rid of you.

CURNANE ON SICK LIST

"Joe" Curnane, of the admittance office at Boston City Hospital is now a patient in Surgical Ward 6 at the institution as a result of injuries received when he was struck in the mouth by a baseball during a practice session on a local sandlot.

RAY MAY ENTER LIST

"BILL" MAHONEY ILL

KELLY BACK ON JOB

Bernard Kelly, chief clerk of the municipal public works department, has been ill for the past two weeks, is reported somewhat improved and it is hoped that he will soon be back on duty at City Hall.

CONVENTION PLANS NOW

Mrs. Helen County Galvin, of the municipal employment bureau, high ranking official of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, is now busy arranging for the annual state convention of the society which takes place in Boston, May 23-25.

LEWIS HANEY FRANK H. MELOON
B. C. FORBES SPECTATOR'S COMMENT

BOSTON AMERICAN

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

Hears:

That despite the breadth of the market, this column finds it hard to enthuse over stocks at current levels. Tape action is undoubtedly impressive and good news is abundant. But these are common phenomena when the market is outthinking a top. It may require two to five sessions before the selling going on under cover makes for a turn. During this time new highs may be scored, and September could be established. And the subsequent ballyhoo will bring the public to the market in a big way.

Market Action

It is almost axiomatic when market action is so reassuring that everyone is certain stocks are to be bought, a turndown is apt to ensue. Someone rightfully remarked that bull moves get under way in a welter of gloom and end up in a haze of glory if has been so with this upturn.

The industrials have crossed the peak closing price of last fall by almost a full point and the rails have but slightly more than three points to go. In the meantime sections it seems likely the rails will also set new tops thus confirming a bull market according to the most reliable theory in price movements.

Then one may be certain the bursts will rise in an ever increasing crescendo; but the insiders will be getting out. Long ago it was indicated here an industrial closing between 83.50-85 and a rail top between 49-42 might mark the long for the current upswing. Caution appeals to us with the areas so close.

DOLLAR-PANIC STAGE PASSED, SAYS HANEY

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics New York University

New York, May 11—Probably the outstanding point about the stock market is that it has definitely passed out of the dollar-panic stage and into a stage of business optimism.

The first uprush was chiefly caused by "inflation" fears or hopes. It was based on a money-holders' panic. Now I think many people have either forgotten their fear of rapidly declining purchasing power of dollars, or doubt that any monetary inflation will occur.

They are buying stocks because stocks are going up, and stocks are going up because they are buying them. The old speculative obsolescence is working again. Doubtless it will continue to work as long as nothing happens materially to upset enough to shake public confidence.

The present bull market is well under way.

Even the most bullish operators probably will be taken by surprise by a ballyhoo which has developed of late.

Anyone who is a real friend of the market would advise that it should go a little slower. Some setback now like a good reaction would insure a better advance. But this has become a big bull market in the past two weeks and evidently is not going to do what any group wants it to do.

For example, I know of a large amount of the best sort of selling by short and powerful interests, but the market waded right through it.

It therefore seems reasonably clear that as long as the published business continues good, the buying will continue to come in and buyers will hold their positions.

I do think, however, that the readiness of what your opinion of the market is, or where it will be a year from now, you should be prepared for a severe shakeout one of these days. That is just common sense.

The moral to these thoughts is that if you are a day-to-day trader, you really should take quick profits and limit losses closely. If you desire to buy for the so-called intermediate moves, you should now await for that long-deayed reaction. If you are a long-pull investor you should pay no attention to the market leaders of the hour or day, but redouble the care and caution with which you analyze earning prospects.

BOSTON STOCKS ARE STRONG

Stock prices were boosted 1 to 8 points in late trading on the Boston exchange today. Volume was heavier than in previous sessions of the week. Utilities featured the forenoon rise with rails coming up with a rush in the final period. Edison Electric sold up 8 points and reduced this gain later in the day.

American Telephone and New England Telephone showed gains of 3 points. Eastern Gas & Fuel issues were active with the common gaining a point while the preferred rose 3 points. Boston Elevated was strong with the general trend, slipping back a point.

Bigelow Sanford preferred soared 8 points while the common showed a gain of more than a point. Gains of 1 to 3 or more points were recorded First National Stores, Sullivan Machine, United Fruit and United Shoe. Hygrade Sylvania jumped 3 points to a new high for the year.

In the carrier group Boston & Maine issues were in the spotlight with the prior preferred and B stamped gaining a point or more and the stamped gaining 2. The A stamped issue lowered a point. Boston & Albany was a strong feature. New Haven, Pennsylvania and Atchison were up a point or more.

Department Stores' Sales Volume Off

New York, May 11 (AP)—Sales of Interstate Department Stores, Inc., for April, excluding grocerie and drug departments, totaled $1,863,748, a decrease of 14.4 per cent from 1932.

American Stores Co. reports that its sales for the four weeks ended April 29 aggregated $3,348,021, or 11.5 per cent under the volume for the same month last year.

New Highs Are Set in Cotton Dealings

New York, May 11—Cotton futures reached new highs for the year today as a heavy demand for contracts from virtually all sides of the ring sent the market around $1 a bale higher. Late today prices were up 17 to 19 points, with July up 16 at 8.82, October up 17 at 9.06, December up 17 at 9.21 and March up 19 at 9.44.

Auburn Shipments Show Big Increase

Shipments by Auburn Automobile Co. for the first ten days of May equaled shipments for the entire month of May, 1932, according to Pres. W. H. Neal. In May, 1932, Auburn shipped 348 cars. In April this year shipments were 1138, against 1124 in April, 1932.

Live News of Leaders Today in Wall Street

FURTHER favorable business news helped stocks to register numerous new highs today. Trading ran at a considerably faster pace than yesterday's, overtaxing the high-speed tickers several times during the session.

Million Invested in Union Pacific

Announcement was made today that one firm this week had invested $1,000,000 in Union Pacific for investment. This company had declared a dividend of $1.50 a share on the common stock, unchanged from the payments made in each of the four preceding quarters prior. The dividend is payable July 1 to stock of record June 1.

Detroit Selling Is Well Absorbed

Institutional liquidation is being satisfactorily accomplished. Street hears that sale of 250,000 shares of General Motors and a block of Electric Auto-Lite was completed Wednesday for account of a leading Detroit institution.

Drug Inventory Position Improved

Reynolds Tobacco Found in Demand

Considerable buying of our stocks has been by British interests the last few weeks and there are some heavy buying orders in certain stocks for this account under the market. One buying order at prices under the current market level is reported for 200,000 shares of Reynolds Tobacco.

Buying Is Heavy for Oil Shares

There has been heavy buying of oil shares, both for so-called insider interests as well as some of the larger traders in the Street. Well informed observers are freely predicting this group will shortly become leaders on the constructive side of the market.

Southern Railway Covering Charges

Recovery in Southern Railway issues responsible to a point almost on a par with a year ago indicates that with the reduction made in expenses the road will probably show sufficient earnings in the current year to cover fixed charges. Net operating income in the first four months, with April estimated, amounted to about $4,000,000. After including extra income, this sum is about $2,000,000 short of fixed charges for the period. Sharp increases in loadings are continuing their upward trend, it is reported in financial circles that the carrier will be able to meet interest payments on its new Convertible 4½s when they mature next month.

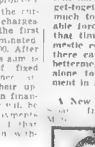
CO-OPERATION OF LEADERS IS NEEDED

By FRANK H. MELOON

One of the leading investment bankers whose advisers J. P. Morgan, former Financial Editor of the New York American, tells us:

"President Roosevelt will be guided in his action according to how much aggressive co-operation he gets from leaders. If manufacturers and producers show a little courage in making forward commitments, the change in consumer sentiment started by the President can be continued.

Announcement of tariff truce between Great Britain and the United States, pending the international conferences in June, attracts further attention to foreign affairs. There can be no definite action in regard to international relations until the June get-together in London. It is much too early for any reasonable forecast of developments at that time, but in so far as domestic conditions are concerned, there can be sufficient business betterment from home influences alone to offset any disappointment in foreign relations."



A. P. Sloan, Jr., through the General Motors corporation, has announced plans for the construction of a new and improved power unit for the corporation's products of leadership in the automotive industry and in the industrial

A New England man, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, is leading the comparative [illegible] of major corporation executives who have weathered the financial and business storm of the last three years and have swept over the world since the stock market crash of 1929. Mr. Sloan's latest photograph [illegible] a few days ago, is reproduced herewith. He has not [illegible] in the limelight [illegible] the head of one of the largest industrial [illegible] in the world.

The market seems headed through the tops of last summer's boom and will probably take a shot at the highs of last year, which are around 90 on the industrial averages. The bullish wheat crop report ought to help the boys along.

Commodity Gossip

The government estimates the improvement in wheat since its last report at only 3,000,000 bushels. The trade is 13,000,000 bushels under present private forecasts. . . We hear some fair long positions have been built up in International Harvester.

Crop Threshing has been a sluggish thing that we have a hunch headed for a change. A share when it turns it old tricks.

A broker lived to get Ben Franklin on the phone and had to give it up in an hour to get a clear connection. This decides American Telephone's last business is but along long . . . but gets close to the company as it indeed is the regular dividend on Monday . . .

A brokerage house identified in person with John J. Raskob was a big buyer of General Motors this week. Wilmington is also reported in the stock in a big way. The objective is put somewhere near 30. We'd probably settle for a little less. Raskob's interest in Motors is the one who has been dressing up his family favorite, Baldwin Locomotive, so that it will be mowed under in compliments, from all the good things around on the group

STATE CURB ON FINANCES OF TOWNS URGED

State control of local government in communities in financial difficulties was urged by the Massachusetts division of the New England Council in a letter to Gov Ely today

The council indorsed the program of the Massachusetts Taxpayers Association, asking the Governor either to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation or to seek the state share of federal funds about to be made available for unemployment relief, rather than float a $30,000,000 bond issue

The council urged Gov Ely to give the state conservation department broad powers to operate a relief program, distributing federal funds only to such communities as are properly organized for economic administration. The conservation department is now in charge of forestry, fish and game

John S Lawrence, council chairman, wrote the Governor in part as follows

"Improvement in business will not be reflected in municipalities for some time to come. Many have by no means met the problems facing them. There are many at the moment in serious financial difficulty.

"The fact that municipalities are not meeting their payroll is sufficient evidence that state supervision or control should immediately be exercised."

TARIFF TRUCE PACT HELD UP

London, May 11 (INS)—Failure of France and Germany to telegraph acceptance of the international tariff truce proposed by the United States today forced postponement of a meeting of the world economic conference's organizing committee until tomorrow.

Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, announced the committee would meet at 3 p. m. tomorrow. Eight nations represented in the committee are expected to ratify the truce and recommend acceptance by the remaining world nations that are to attend the conference.

Paris, May 11 (INS)—Premier Daladier and his radical socialist (government) party chieftains are agreed the question of foreign debts must be considered at the world economic conference, the newspaper Quotidien announced today.

The paper said this agreement had been reached despite insistence by the American administration that the debt question remain off the conference agenda and be discussed "concurrently."

Gandhi in Pain and Weaker

Poona, India, May 11 (INS)—Wracked with pain, Mahatma Gandhi was weaker today as he entered the fourth day of his three-week fast against untouchability.

Surrounded by every attention and luxury in the cottage of his benefactor, Lady Thakersey, the Mahatma spent a restless night.

He has been asked to take more quantities of water.

Mrs. Gandhi was released from jail in Bombay today and will reach Poona Friday.

Planter Moon Fine, But It May Rain

Today is a day of rejoicing among farmers and persons with window boxes because last night the Planters' Moon shone full and bright without a single cloud obscuring it. This means, according to those versed in lunar lore, that crops will be plentiful this year. Flowers will be more fragrant. Birds will sing more sweetly, and children will still not like spinach.

The planters' moon made no difference to the weathermen however, who went right on predicting cloudy skies and probable showers for tonight and tomorrow.

Bridge Rule Changes to Be Kept Down

New York, May 11 (AP)—The United States Bridge Association announced today that it would guard against any sudden changes in the rules of the game, which have been so disturbing in the past. Hitherto, rules have been promulgated by the Whist Club of New York. The United States Bridge Association now intends that any future changes should be made by its national laws committee.

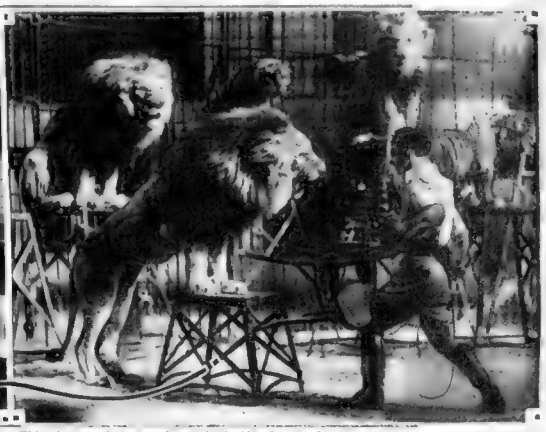
Battle of Age -:- -:- Lion vs. Tiger -:- -:- Beatty Picks Lion Every Time

Here is one of the most spectacular animal battles ever photographed. It was made during the filming of the famous animal picture, "The Big Cage," in which Clyde Beatty, the dare-devil trainer with the circus at Boston Garden, was the star. The lion won, in a fight to a finish. "Tommy" is the name of the tiger. The lion's cognomen is "Sultan."

Twice daily for 15 minutes this world-famed animal trainer does miraculous stunts with 34 lions and tigers in a large steel cage, with the Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey combined Show. Here is Beatty in his dressing room preparing for act.



This photograph was made on the inside of the famous Beatty cage. When Beatty is going at his best, his lion and tiger act counts 47 animals. Thirteen of the animals, which made an extra on the circus train, were not brought in the big tent, as the circus tours around the country, Beatty will be in there.

BEATTY HAILS KING LION

Famed Animal Trainer Describes Battles of Lions and Tigers

Lion versus tiger—which would win in a fight?

You would probbaly guess wrong, as the writer did, when he asked Clyde R. Beatty, the daredevil animal trainer, who goes into a big cage at Boston Garden, twice daily, for 15 minutes, with 34 lions and tigers, making them do all kinds of stunts, with only a chair and whip as his weapons.

LION AN EASY WINNER

The winner of such a fight between these two vicious animals would invariably be the lion, in the opinion of Beatty, whose act is being featured in Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey combined circus. And this young man ought to know, as he carries 20 major scars from attacks by these big animals during the 10 years he has been in the show business.

"The worst fight I ever saw between a tiger and a lion lasted just three minutes" said Mr. Beatty. "And at the end of those three minutes the tiger was dead. The fight occurred last winter at Hollywood, Cal. during the filming of my picture 'The Big Cage.' The animals that fought it out to a finish were Sultan, a 650 pound lion and Tommy, a tiger that weighed as much. Both were fine, young animals.

"We made every possible effort to separate Tommy and Sultan when they accidentally got together but our best efforts failed. The lion finally got a hold on the tiger's throat and it was then all over but the shouting. In just three minutes from the time the combat began Tommy was dead.

LIONS ALL FOR ONE

"I believe that in almost every fight between a lion and a tiger the lion would win. Many persons have asked me my opinion with respect to such combats.

"During the last 10 years 17 tigers and two lions have been killed in the course of my act. The lions gang together. If a lion gets into a fight with a tiger all the lions go to the defense of their kind, making short work of the tiger. On the other hand the tigers stick together in much the same way from their kind.

"One night in Cannelville, Pa., two tigers were killed in the cage during the course of a general fight in which every one of the 29 animals in the cage participated."

Mr. Beatty, who has scars six inches long on his body from being attacked by the animals he faces twice daily in the big cage, has been near death three times from such attacks.

"One of my closest calls came in Kokomo, Ind., in the spring of 1930," he said.

"During the first performance of 'Trifle,' a five-year-old Sumatra tiger, she leaped through the air over the chair I was using in the act and caught me by the right arm. She would have killed me but for the fact that 'Nero,' a lion that leaped on her and pulled her off me. I separated them.

FIST GAGGED LION

"During the winter of 1932 'Nero' leaped on me in Peru, Ind., at winter training quarters, and I was laid up for weeks. There were seven animals in the cage at the time and 'Nero' was making love. He became very angry at me for interrupting him. He knocked me flat on my back and his teeth went through my thigh. Imagine being knocked down by a 650-pound animal like that. Fearing he would attack my face or throat I grabbed hold of his nose and pushed him as far away as I could.

"Then I shoved my fist down his throat so it gagged him. As I pulled my arm out, however, he grabbed me by the leg. He gave me two or three shakes and then followed the other animals as they started to leave the cage thinking the act was ended.

"I'm sure is a thrilling thing to be in that cage with those animals and anything may happen at any time there."

HULTMAN TO CLOSE SOCIALITE 'SPEAKIES'

TEACHER GAVE OVER $1200 TO 'GIFT FAMILY'

Miss Florence E. Risley of Clear way st. Back Bay, a teacher of litt reading, testified before Referee in Bankruptcy Charles P. Ryan, in federal court today, to investing $1200 in the gift family scheme, in connection with which several women have been indicted.

She is one of several investors who are seeking to have Mrs. Florence Hascall of Bay State rd., who is one of those who have been indicted, declared a bankrupt.

She said she entrusted her investments to Miss Ida M. Farnum and received $550 back.

"I was happy at the idea of getting so much interest," she said.

"To whom did you look for repayment?" she was asked.

"The benefactor that I was told about, who was making the investments possible," she replied.

But when she was pressed to name any specific person, she named Mrs. Hascall. The mysterious "benefactor" remains unnamed despite numerous hearings held in connection with the scheme.

Miss Risley said she wrote to Mrs. Hascall in May, 1932, receiving no reply from her, but did get an answer from Miss Farnum instead. After her testimony the hearing was continued to May 18.

Even Canaries Modern at N. E. Council Show

Even the canaries have "gone modern" at the New Products Exhibition and Conference of the New England Council, which opened a two-day session at Hotel Statler today.

One of the most interesting exhibit is a modernistic bird craze complete with canary, shown in connection with the exhibit of the Ballware Products Corp. of Brighton. The cage is done in black and chromium, but the bird doesn't mind that.

Every conceivable type of new merchandise is on exhibition open to the public between 11 a. m. and 4 p. m.

From a new mechanical counter which can count continuously for 10 years before going back to zero to a checker board for lazy people which is so arranged that the checkers may be returned to their starting position by merely closing the board, the exhibit is complete.

The time-honored beer keg and case will have to give way to newer and brighter forms of packaging, in smaller units, J. D. Malcolmson of New York said at this morning's session of the conference.

Dr. Walter B. Pitkin, Columbia psychologist, declared a new booming business of "not less than $100,000,000" will be created by the tendency of Bostonians to move out into the suburbs.

He also urged that New England concentrate its attention on its vacation resources.

"It is a hopeful sign that business, transportation and agriculture, stimulated by the new administration at Washington, are departing from the orthodox procedures of the past and seeking new and better ways of doing things," asserted James W. Hook of New Haven, who presided over the morning session of the conference.

A visit to the research laboratories of M. I. T. is scheduled for tomorrow.

PROBE ORDERED OF EVERETT CHARGES

Alleged corruption in the municipal affairs of Everett were ordered under investigation today by Dist. Atty. Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex county.

Details of the charges were withheld by Assistant District Attorney Frederic A. Crafts, to whom the investigation was assigned by District Attorney Bishop.

Crafts said today that many complaints from residents of Everett had been received by the district attorney's office.

"I have already questioned two or three investigators," Crafts said. "Thus far, I am not in a position to disclose what the nature of the charges are in detail. But if after questioning several more witnesses, which I shall do shortly, any of the charges appear to have sufficient foundation, I shall prosecute the investigation vigorously."

News that the district attorney's office had been asked to investigate municipal affairs followed the announcement that Mrs. Ida W. McDonald and Mrs. Ernest R. Porter had been removed as trustees of the Shute Memorial Library.

While their removal thus far has no apparent bearing on the investigation, Everett voters see in this action an attempt on the part of Mayor Michael C. O'Neill to remove from office all those politically hostile toward him.

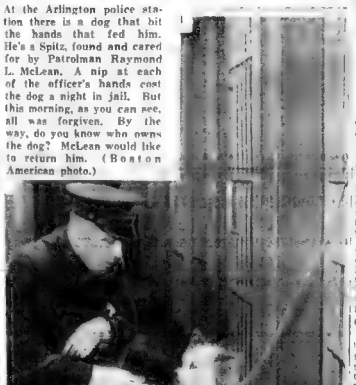
Mrs. Porter is the wife of Ernest R. Porter, president of the Everett Taxpayers' Association. Mrs. McDonald is a member of the same association.

"I cannot understand why Mayor O'Neill removed Mrs. Porter or myself from the board of trustees, unless it is because of our association with the Taxpayers' Association. I was one of Mayor O'Neill's workers during his campaign for mayor.

"Mrs. Porter's husband is president of the Taxpayers' Association. It would have been common courtesy for Mayor O'Neill to allow Mrs. Porter to remain in office inasmuch as Mrs. Porter's father and uncle gave the library to the city. I know nothing about any charges of corruption in city affairs."

THEY SHAKE AND MAKE UP

At the Arlington police station there is a dog that bit the hands that fed him. He's a Spitz, found and cared for by Patrolman Raymond L. McLean. A nip at each of the officer's hands cost the dog a night in jail. But this morning, as you can see, all was forgiven. By the way, do you know who owns the dog? McLean would like to return him. (Boston American photo.)



NAMES TWO HE INTENDS TO GO AFTER

At least two of Boston's gay drinking resorts of the socially elite where the 400 gather nightly to drink and dance are slated to go under the order of Police Commissioner Hultman.

The police commissioner has declared war on 70 acknowledged Boston speakeasies including those that the gay young hoods of Boston's upper crust and their ladies have been wont to attend until the wee small hours.

One of these gathering places which is operating a chartered club is located in Winchester st. Police say that on any Saturday night or any night for that matter the social queens dance and then go to tables to drink champagne and other costly beverages.

OPEN ALL NIGHT

Another of the society clubs is located in an abandoned stone's throw from one of Boston's largest motion picture palaces. The gate to this place is open all night. According to Commissioner Hultman, it has 900 "members."

"When I became police commissioner of Boston there was one thing I set out to do and that was to close up barricaded speakeasies of this city. I think I have succeeded, pretty well.

"The speakeasy in Winchester st. is frequented by the 'best' people in town, including many persons who are prominent socially.

"When one of our police officials tried to enter the 'club' near the movie picture house and inquired why so many persons went in and out of the building he was asked by an official of the club: 'Why shouldn't a large number of persons come into the building and go out? Our club has a membership of 900 persons.' He then showed the police officials who went there a list of the 'members.'

CHARTERS ARE SAFE

"Under the law as it is now the Secretary of State cannot revoke the charters of these so-called clubs unless there has been a final conviction against them. That is a most difficult thing to obtain, for the first place a club is practically as sacred as the home under the law as it now stands.

"It is necessary for the police to get a sale of liquor in order to make an arrest. Tom, Dick and Harry may be in the place and each of them is permitted under the law to own a certain quantity of liquor and so it is very difficult to prove that the liquor they are drinking is not their own.

"All these speakeasy 'clubs' must be closed. Criminals use them as hangouts, and there is no doubt in my mind that many crimes, including holdups, are planned there.

"Liquor will always be sold and vice will always be with us but both should be controlled."

CHARTER DRIVE NETS FIRST CASE

Prosecution of the first chartered club, alleged to be a speakeasy, began in Municipal Court today as Commissioner Hultman was issuing a declaration of war on 70 known speakeasies now operating on club charters throughout the city.

Hultman's order followed recent disclosures by the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser of a charter racket ring which bought and sold charters of organizations long since disbanded to speakeasy owners in order that these could operate without police interference.

The first chartered club raided was the Eureka Social and Literary Association in Harvard st., South End, which numbered among its directors Jean Parker Casey, stormy petrel of the Back Bay.

DeMilion Sorracco, "librarian," was specifically charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale at the club. Police raiders testified that they found 16 pints of gin, 10 pints of rye and six quarts of Scotch in the club, but did not mention finding any literature.

Sorracco testified that he was hired by a stranger and knew nothing about the liquor, although police said they found him behind a bar 30 feet long, under which one pint of rye was found and on which were lemons and limes, probably bookmarks.

Seven Dogs Poisoned

Lexington police are investigating the wholesale poisoning of dogs in that town today. In the past two weeks a total of seven cases of dog poisonings have been reported.

21 More Gets Jobs, Go Off Welfare

Improving business conditions have caused 21 men, married and heads of families, to ask that their names be stricken from the municipal welfare lists, during the past 48 hours, Walter V. McCarthy, secretary of the board of overseers of the public welfare, announced today.

All of these men obtained employment this week. These withdrawals bring the total of needy men who have secured work during the past four weeks to 498, McCarthy said.

2 HURT IN DYE PLANT BLAST

Two men were burned by an explosion of gasoline which set fire to Pressman's Dye House, Stoneham sq., Stoneham, today. Irving Pressman, 18, son of the proprietor, and Raymond DiMassi, 22, of Williams st., Chelsea, were burned about the face and hands and taken to Winchester hospital.

Captured Youths Are Wanted Here

Two Salem youths, captured by Philadelphia police at gunpoint yesterday, are wanted here by Peabody police on charges of breaking and entering, and Brockton police have wired for their photos and fingerprints suspecting them to have been involved in several jewel robberies here.

Brewery Workman Injured in Plunge

Timothy Sullivan, 40, of 644 East Eight st., South Boston, employed at the Old American Brewery, Roxbury, was seriously injured today when he fell from the second floor of the building. According to fellow workmen he reached out of the window to clear a load of lumber being hoisted to the fourth and lost his balance. He was taken to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

Ely Vetoes Labels for State's Autos

Gov. Ely today vetoed a bill which would require every state automobile to be conspicuously marked "Commonwealth of Massachusetts—For Official Use Only."

The bill was designed to check use of state vehicles for joy rides and for transportation to and from homes.

MEXICO WILL PASS ON FILM

Finished Script of "Viva Villa" Will Be Given Government by M-G-M for Review

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service
Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, May 11—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer expects to take the finished script of "Viva Villa," put it on a silver platter and present it to the Mexican government. Every care is being taken not to offend Mexico. Wallace Smith, who has spent considerable time in the Latin country is collaborating with O. H. P. Garrett in turning out an acceptable scenario.

Wallace Beery has been chosen to play the colorful role of Mexico's famous bandit. Jack Conway, who is just now home from a vacation, will direct the screen version of the book by Edgcumb Pinchon, which was sought after by every company in the business.

No actor on the screen puts quite so much color into these well known historical characters as George Arliss. Disraeli, his "Voltaire" and his "Alexander Hamilton" are all careful studies of these famous historical personages. Warner Brothers have bought another typical Arliss vehicle in "His Child," a play by George A. Worsley. Arliss will be starred as the great financial genius.

Louella Parsons

Rouben Mamoulian understands the Marlene Dietrich temperament, so they figure on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot he ought to be a good director for Greta Garbo. I am reliably informed that M-G-M has borrowed Mamoulian from Paramount to direct the Swedish actress in "Queen Christina."

Snapshots of Hollywood:

ALICE GLAZER has gone to work for WILLIAM HAINES. Both were at the LIBMAN-TASHMAN dinner given in honor of MISS SUE SMITH and ELSA MAXWELL. RUTH ETTING, entertainer at the piano, played some of the newest and catchiest song numbers. MISS MAXWELL, who leaves for New York with MISS SMITH and EDITH WILKERSON, sang and played in her own inimitable manner. Young MRS. SELZNICK (IRENE MAYER) wore a pale green frock that was as chic as anything seen in these parts in many a day. Stunner is Sue. COLLEENE ESPANO wore black and white chiffon, so did LILYAN TASHMAN and JOAN BENNETT. KENNETH MACKENNA supervised without KAY FRANCIS and her husband, GARY COOPER, and MISS SMITH held a booth's consolation. SAM HOFFENSTEIN recited first an Irish lyric then a Jewish verse, both very good and both similar in meter. HERMAN MANKIEWICZ and DAVID SELZNICK in a corner talking shop. All the newspaper gang at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the luncheon aboard the tugboat on the "Tugboat Annie" set. DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS expected home today. That's all today.

Vaude-Films

For the last half of the week, beginning today, the Bowdoin offers a musical comedy bearing the title "A Variety Whirl," with the Six California Ramblers, Murray and Ditson, Lorraine and Carlos, Virginia Jordan and York and Lewis.

Exeter Theater

Ralph Bellamy and Mae Clarke in "Parole Girl," and Jack Oakie in "Sailor Be Good" are the attractions at the Exeter for the remainder of the week.

Robert Montgomery and Madge Evans are peering into a romantic future. They are two of the principals in "Hell Below," stirring photodrama, which has its premiere at Loew's State tomorrow.

At the Gayety

The Gayety today has an entire new program of pictures and vaudeville. On the screen will be "Obey The Law," with Leo Carrillo, Dickie Moore and Lois Wilson. The co-feature will be "The Boss's Vacation," with George Arliss, Dick Powell and Patricia Ellis.

Raymond Knight at Met Sunday

The Metropolitan next Sunday, as its special added feature, offers Raymond Knight and the Ponce Sisters, two outstanding radio acts. Manager Hy Fine announces this as a special attraction, and adds that Boston fans should particularly like them as they are town folk, all. Knight specializes in comedy and the "kuku" hour is said to be his creation. The Ponce Sisters are Ethel and Dorothea.

Favorites in Theaters' New Offerings

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

There's still gold in the Hollywood diggings. "Looking Forward" proves it. This is a photoplay done with an exquisite touch at all angles; story, direction and acting are of the first rank. It will come to the screen at Loew's Orpheum, tomorrow, a worthy leader in the vanguard of films marking changes on local screens.

In this picture one can delight in the acting of folk as thoroughgoing in their art as Lewis Stone and Lionel Barrymore. The photoplay rings true to life in its sincere, simple enactment, and in its superb manner of production. Other changes tomorrow bring "Hell Below," Robert Montgomery's first in too long a while, to Loew's State; "The Story of Temple Drake," with Miriam Hopkins and William Gargan, to the Metropolitan, and "The Phantom Broadcast," to the RKO Keith Boston. All four set for the Friday openings are melodrama, and among the lot should be entertainment to serve every taste.

On Saturday, Irene Dunne will be seen at Keith's in "The Silver Cord," which will undoubtedly see the stellar actress in her usual classy form. The Modern screens on the same day "Son of the Eagle" and "Love Is Like That," the latter a first-run with John Warburton, Rochelle Hudson and Dorothy Revier. On Sunday, "Cavalcade," one of the finest of all sound pictures swings to the Scollay screen.

$25,000 for Big Race | Rockingham's Plans
Head Play Against | Track Now Ready
Speedy Broker's Tip | 960 Stalls Fit

By JACK CONWAY

Lou Smith, who will conduct the horse racing at Rockingham Park at Salem, N. H., is prepared to offer a purse of $25,000 for a special match race between Broker's Tip and Head Play.

Mr. Boston

"I believe New England is ready for a major racing classic," Lou told me as we wandered about the huge racing plant at Rockingham Park. "A match race between Broker's Tip and Head Play would prove a tremendous attraction in view of their sensational race at Churchill Downs last Saturday. I am prepared to offer $25,000 for such a race. It would attract persons to Rockingham Park from all parts of the East."

"We had 800 men working here at one time," said Lou. "We still have several hundred men employed. It is our intention to build a new paddock which will be situated directly behind the grandstand. The old paddock is too far from the grandstand. The horses then will parade to the post on a runway next to the grandstand. On the other side of the runway we plan to build a clubhouse. Work on these buildings will be started at once so that we shall be ready for the opening of our first meeting on June 21."

Lou Brouillard Breezes Around Rockingham Track

Jim Munroe, in charge of construction at Rockingham, asked Lou Brouillard and myself to hop into his car. Brouillard made the trip to Rockingham with Eddie Mack, Johnny Carr, Eddie Hurley, Sam Cohen and your faithful globe trotter. He has been training for 10 days for his bout with Sammy Slaughter of Terre Haute, which takes place at the Arena on next Tuesday night, and felt that a day's layoff would do him more good than another session with his sparring partners.

"We'll first take a spin around the track," said Monroe. "I built this track two years ago, and it is one of the finest of its kind in the country. Other than for a little rolling, it is ready for the opening right now."

Jim's car breezed down in front of the judges' stand. Then we hit the first corner and turned into the back stretch.

"Right over there on your right is the new chute I have built for the start of the three-quarter mile races," said Jim. "Two years ago we started the three-quarter mile races on the first turn and there was always considerable jamming at the start. Now the horses will have a chute and they will come roaring out onto the track from this straightaway.

"The back stretch is in good condition. Down by the next turn they used to be troubled by some water, but I have taken care of that situation by some new drains.

"Take a look at the steeplechase jumps I am building inside of the track. I'll construct water holes, or anything else the steeplechase men want. I consider that kind of stuff suicide riding, but if they want me to put up stone walls and other difficult obstacles I shall do so. You see I merely build jumps, and don't have to get up on a horse and clear them. I am no Prince of Wales."

Stables Ready to Care for 960 Horses

"Those stables were built in five days," said Lou. "Jim Monroe directed the job. We have stalls for 960 horses. There are 2700 entries for our first meeting which means we shall only allow the best of the horses to compete.

"The first of the horses will start arriving early in June. This track will be alive with thoroughbreds by the middle of June. We will be able to care for 45,000 persons at a race meeting. There will be parking space for 6000 cars inside the track, while the Boston & Maine Railroad will run its trains to the entrance of the track.

"The price of admission will be $1 and will permit a person to go any place on the grounds or in the stands other than the clubhouse where there will be a special charge of $2.50. I am trying to work out a plan with the railroad by which for $2 a person will be able to get a round-trip on the train from Boston and also a ticket to the races. I am anxious to give the public as much for its money as possible."

Record List of Attractive Purses

The Rockingham meeting will be a rich one for owners of horses. A record number of purses have been offered. The prize money is larger than that offered at most race meetings. A special race will be staged on July 4. It may be the proposed meeting between Head Play and Broker's Tip.

The activity at Rockingham reminded me of war days in the training camps. Everywhere men were working putting up new buildings, digging ditches, erecting jumps for the steeplechase, cutting through new roads, filling in swamp areas, planting gardens and trees.

"I have built a dozen race tracks," said Jim Monroe, "but I believe this one is the best of them all. This track is set in a hollow, and there is a great deal of natural scenery. The lawn in front of the grandstand slopes down to the edge of the track, and as a result, persons standing on the lawn will be able to follow a race from start to finish."

60 Booths for Pari-Mutuel Machines

There are 60 booths for the pari-mutuel machines. It is expected that all of these booths will be in operation on days of important races.

"Race tracks have done a big business this year," said Smith. "The Florida meetings were a success, while the Kentuck and Maryland meetings have been attracting large crowds. I believe our two meetings at Rockingham will rank with the best in this country."

Train Marathon for Clem, B. U. Sport Ace, This Week

Carl "Whitey" Clem, Boston University's five sport man, will again do a solo in traveling and compete for two different teams on successive days this weekend.

Whitey tomorrow will play on the tennis team against Union College at Schenectady, N. Y. Saturday morning, instead of leaving with the racquet wielders for the University of Vermont matches, at Burlington, he will hop a rattler for Springfield and then go on to Middleton, Ct., to compete for the Boston University track team against Wesleyan.

This spring, Clem completes his athletic career at Boston University and will have earned seven major letters and six minor letters, which is by far the most awards any undergraduate has ever secured at Boston University.

Braves Face the Cards' Million Dollar Hurling Staff

By JOE CASHMAN

Wild Will Hallahan, Dizzy Dean, Tex Carleton, Dazzy Vance, Jim Mooney, Bill Walker, Jess Haines, Jim Lindsey, Dutch Henry and John Ogden are ready to strut their stuff for the St. Louis Cardinals against our Braves, in single games today, tomorrow and Saturday, and a double-header on Sunday.

With a dozen major league clubs willing to lay $50,000 on the line for one more first-class flinger, Sergeant Gabby Street has more aces than he knows what to do with on his Mound City roster. All the same, he refuses to do without 10 of them.

He contributed Paul Derringer and Allen Stout to bolster the Cincinnati pitching last week, but he insisted upon receiving Henry and Ogden as well as Sassy Leo Durocher in return.

CARD STARTERS GREAT

Dean, Carleton and Vance, righthanders, and Hallahan, Mooney and Walker, southpaws, are the Cards' starting hurlers. And when any of them starts, he usually finishes. The relief quartet sees little action. When rescue work is required, Old Sarge calls first on his regulars. A smart system, that. Any attack the "Big Six" can't stop, just can't be stopped.

Since the swap with the Reds, the Cardinals' hurling stamps them as the most dangerous rivals of the pace-setting Pirates in the current flag struggle.

It looked at the start of the season as though the loss of Charlie Gelbert, crack shortstop, would leave a hole in the St. Louis infield that pitching couldn't possibly fill. The acquisition of Durocher plugs that gap to perfection.

Pitching is Street's greatest asset, but is far from being his only one. He has the best catching in the league with Jimmy Wilson and Bob O'Farrell available. He has the peerless Frankie Frisch at second and colorful Pepper Martin at third.

Joe Medwick, his leftfielder, is the best flychaser to come up in years, and combining with Ernie Orsatti and George Watkins, gives the Redbirds an outfield that ranks second only to the Pirates' trio.

There's also plenty of reserve strength on the St. Louis bench with Rogers Hornsby, Pat Crawford, Ethan Allen, Estel Crabtree, Ray Pepper, Gordon Slade and Charlie Wilson sitting around.

Hornsby was at second until Durocher arrived. Then Frisch moved back to the keystone sack and Rogers back to the bench. The "Rajah," trying desperately to make a comeback, is still bothered with a bad leg which has slowed him down to a walk in the field.

He continues, however, to be one of baseball's greatest hitters and gate attractions. So he'll probably hang on to earn enough to keep the wolf from his door.

Wednesday morning showers gave the Braves a day of rest to prepare for the Cards. It was the first vacation the natives enjoyed in two weeks and was welcomed by everybody on the squad, from Manager Bill McKechnie down to the bat boy.

OUTDOOR DOG SHOW CARDED

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

The first outdoor dog show of the season will be staged by the Ladies Kennel Association of Massachusetts at Norumbega Park on Saturday.

It will be the first show held under the direction of the organization and a large entry has been received. The show will be open from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m.

President of the association is Mrs. Charles F. Townsend with Mrs. H. Pearson Mitchell as first vice-president and Mrs. W. B. Colpitts secretary.

A ring with T. F. Kemp of Bridgewater this year been worrying for some weeks as it did not make Saturday show. The first ever staged by the group.

The officers of the association along with Mrs. William Crowhill, Miss Viola Forster, Mrs. Teron Fales and Mrs. Thomas Fessenden from the board of governors. Judging will start at 10:3 a. m.

Judges will be as follows: Sporting dogs, C. N. Gow; sporting dogs, hounds, C. W. Lewis; working dogs, C. N. Gow; terriers, Willard B. Evans; toys, Henry Forrester; best in show, Matt B. Kerwin.

Mowry Obtained by Tribe for Holland, Hurler and Cash

The Braves today obtained Joe Mowry, an outfielder, from Minneapolis in exchange for Outfielder Bob Holland, a pitcher yet to be selected, and some cash. The new player will report immediately.

After breaking in as a rookie with Minneapolis, he hits .348 and made an American Association record of batting 176 runs. He also made the most hits 217 and has the league's best total base mark of 354.

The Braves obtained the services of the young outfielder not only because they were willing to outbid all other competitors but also because they had the most cash to offer.

HOLLAND GOES

Less than a year ago the Tribe paid more than $20,000 for Holland and he was regarded as a regular at the start of this season. However the opportunity came to obtain Mowry the Braves officials acted promptly to include Holland in order to close the deal.

The Braves were interested in Mowry last year but he was not on the market. When Dave Bancroft former manager of the Braves went to Minneapolis as the head of the league office he immediately got in touch with him regarding Mowry.

BANCROFT GAVE TIP

Bancroft never had seen the youngster in action but stated he would give his opinion as soon as he could form one.

The deal was completed this morning and Mowry will leave Minneapolis today. He is due to arrive in Boston in time to play against the St. Louis Cardinals.

He is a center fielder by trade but can play any outfield position. Mowry broke into the Minneapolis outfield as a rookie last year. He established himself as a batter right off the reel and was consistent right through the season. His batting average was .348. He made a new American Association record by scoring 176 runs. He made the most hits, 257 and he had the league's best total bases with a mark of 354.

He broke in unheralded and took

—By BILL CORUM—

New York, May 11.—The Freddie Lindstrom, once more one of the Polo Grounds' names, is to the long shadows and the Sugan's Bluff this afternoon in uniform of the Pirates and as a member of what we have been calling the best outfield in baseball.

Probably no player of modern times ever broke into the big leagues under more dramatic conditions than the tall, rangy schoolboy from Chicago who Washington had just won the pennant.

The Giants' regular third baseman, Heine Groh, was crippled and McGraw was in a worse spot than along came Lindstrom.

SWEDE GETS CHANCE

"A kid named Lindstrom."

"He bane Swede, eh"

"Yep," piped up sinister Dick Kinsella, who had been giving Freddie the double-o out around the Middle West, "and he bane pretty Swede ball player, too."

And as it turned out, my fellow, so it turned out!

I guess all of you who follow baseball will remember that World Series all right. Before it was over it had resolved itself into a battle between the big Swede and the little Swede, the tall Swede being Walter Johnson and the little one Lindy, the cheese-it boy.

Under my property I don't think there was ever such an ovation at the Polo Grounds as the one Lindy had on the day that old Barney Dreyfuss' locker in the Washington clubhouse. Which obviously explains why Lindstrom had more use of him.

That is, I assume from what he acted in this series he never hear of nothing else. Some time Barney left a bottle and knocked it off the bulletin board down his throat.

So the series settled itself into a hard fought game with no runs, no wonder, and the Giants had to come the best of it and in the seventh drive we went down to Washington to battle it out and all on the banks of the Potomac.

They had pounded Lindstrom out of the box the day before at the Polo Grounds but you never saw anything like the cold nerve he put in the station that morning. It made him when he stepped off the train.

BARNEY BAILED

Instead of a button in the crowd I could have thought it was Barney Dreyfuss, the conqueror, or one of those old Roman generals coming in straight-from the battle. That was what reminded me.

Certainly it was the memory of that deciding game that helped how bad nothing out in the box. The pitcher's mound was a cool head the size of Lincoln and the prayers of Senator Ball fans.

Two grimly determined teams went to work on the mound. Lindstrom started off in a way to win Coolidge's approval, walking on a whistling straight ball to Ruel. Then Goslin lofted one to Frisch and Ruel was forced out at second. Lindstrom grew cautious and walked Judge Harris, filling the bases, heavy for Lon Goslin.

A thousand fans in the stands gilded the dome of the Capitol and old Sir Johnson had begun to wind out of more trouble than a man with nine wives before breakfast, drop in the number of the winner's alley.

I think it was at this point that player named McNeely stepped up to the plate. Muddy Ruel ran back of the plate and bent down low over the batter to get set himself to make a throw to second. But the ball struck a pebble and bounced crazily over Ruel's head and while it rolled lazily into left field Ruel went home and Washington went mad with joy.

Welcome home, Freddie!

RESULTS TODAY

Eastern 7, Western 4
Northern 6, Southern 5.

By BILL GRIMES

For the first time in the annals of the W. G. A. team match championship Eastern District was victorious over the rest of the country when it defeated Western, Northern and Southern districts, at the Weston Golf Club today. The Eastern players were completely outclassed, defeating the Southern district by a score of 6 to 5, while the Western district defeated the Northern district by a score of 7 to 4.

After the matches Miss Dorothy Richards, Eastern district champion and runner-up for the national championship last year, said: "I always enjoy playing with Miss Howard, and I'm glad we won. I'm also glad that Miss Brewer defeated Miss Rosamond Valley. I up at Belmont."

After a hard fought three day golf match there were three extra hole matches. The Eastern District went over the top place in the W. G. A. team match championship by defeating Western, 7 to 4, today at the Weston Golf Club.

Two of the extra hole matches were won by the members' winning team. Miss Jane Bradwell defeated Miss Edith Stevens and Mrs. M. Ferris, Jr., eliminating Mrs. H. F. Prunaret, Jr.

MISS BREWER MEDAL

Miss Martha Brewer, Miss Dorothy Richards and Mrs. Willie Howard turned in the best medal play round. All cardinal 82.

Miss Brewer won out in the match with Miss Batchelder while Miss Richards went to the turn in 38 to be 7 up on Mrs. Rowley. Miss Brewer to a 7 and 6 decision from Miss Batchelder and Miss Richards came through with an 8 and 7 victory over Mrs. Rowley.

Mrs. Howard scored a 5 and 3 win over Mrs. Baker which was the second time this season she accomplished this feat. Mrs. Howard was back in 34 for her 38 which included a 7 at the 12th hole.

The outstanding feature of the match was Mrs. Howard's 4 on the second hole, where she put third shot six feet from the pin and dropped her putt.

BREAKS AID MRS. FERRIS

Mrs. Prunaret encountered bad breaks on the 17th green in her match with Miss Ferris. With Mrs. Prunaret on from the tee Mrs. Ferris' recovery shot took her out of the bunker laid the East player a dead stymie, and then Mrs. Prunaret laid herself a stymie when her approach hit her opponent's ball, costing the hole and a 1 turned out the match.

Miss Dorothy Hunter, after being 2 down at the turn came home in 4 under par from Mrs. J. D. Wood to 2 and 1.

Southern Is Eliminated From W. G. A. Chance

Southern District defending champions were eliminated in their bid for a third title at Belmont Springs today, when they bowed to Northern District, 6 matches to 5.

The feature round was represented by Miss Margaret Curtis who aided in all in defeating Mrs. R. M. Gardiner 6 to 5.

ROSS TAKES THE RAP—OUT OF THE TRAP

Here a one time we've found Art Ross, manager of the Bruins, with the game far from on the ice. Art, indeed, is in the trap, and that's one place your serious golfer doesn't like to have his picture taken. But it's out with the niblick and blast for the green—let the exploding sands blow in whose eyes they may. The trap, by the way, was at Wollaston Golf Club.

HEAD PLAY IS PREAKNESS FAVORITE

Baltimore, May 11 (AP)—Mrs. Silas S. Mason's sterling colt, Head Play, today was believed by many to be the likely favorite when a select group of thoroughbreds goes to the post in the Preakness Saturday.

Running for the first time since he was barely nosed out by Col. E. R. Bradley's Broker's Tip in the Kentucky Derby last week, Head Play breezed around a muddy track at Pimlico in fast time until his speed was supremely checked by Jockey Earl Steffen.

The Mason entry was clocked at 24 seconds for the first quarter mile; 48 3-5 for the half, 1:01 2-5 for five-eighths and 1:15 for six furlongs. After his jockey had received the signal to hold the colt back, the mile was finished in 1:41 3-5 and the mile and an eighth in 1:56 2-5.

Steffen said Head Play was "coasting" in run and apparently exerted himself but little.

Meantime, other candidates for the $25,000 added Preakness, run over a mile and three-sixteenths at the Pimlico track, took work out, the group including the highly regarded Broker's Tip.

Broker's Tip was not so impressive as was Head Play, but trackmen pointed out that he was not a good work horse when alone and that he was not extended.

LEWIS CHOICE OVER GEORGE

Strangler Lewis has been installed a 10 to 7 favorite for his finish mat bout, best two falls out of three, with Ed Don George, world's champion, which will be staged at the Boston Garden on next Wednesday night.

This is due to the fact Lewis defeated George in a bout on the Coast two years ago last February. The big fellows have not met since. In the Coast bout, Lewis stripped George of his title when he pinned him twice.

Lewis has been in and out as world's champion so often the fans would not be surprised to see him step back on the throne again.

Paul Bowser has signed Count Zarynoff to meet Benny Ginsberg of New York in one of the star prelims. In the main prelim Charley Strack will battle Rolland Kirschmeyer.

Yankee Horse Wins Wilburton Handicap

Newmarket, Eng., May 11 (AP)—The American, C. Gluesey, today won the Wilburton Handicap with his horse Pelago, which finished the mile a length and a half ahead of Sir A. Butt's Plain Ella and 11 others. Pelago was 3 to 1 in the betting. The purse was £300 and extras.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

Two M. G. A. three-day tournaments, The Country Club Cup and the Wellesley open handicap medal play events started this morning. Although The Country Club Cup has not attracted large fields for some years, it is still one of the classics of the season.

Due to the fact that the entry fee for The Country Club Cup has been reduced a larger field is expected for the qualifying round today. The low 16 gross scores will start match play tomorrow morning, playing two rounds each day through Saturday.

Weed to Be Feted

Unless Woodin at butches its strength, Wollaston will still be in th. pacemaking berth when the Boston Four Ball League teams gather at the Oakley Country Club to pay honor to its president, Frank H. "Pop" Weed, a fortnight hence.

For the first time in five years Oakley will stage an open four-ball tournament next Wednesday and Thursday. The Oakley four-ball tournaments had the call over the Country Club's affairs for many years, and there is a strong likelihood that a record breaking field will battle for the two gross and two net prizes next week. The course will be open for practice next Tuesday.

Going into the fifth round of the W. G. A. team match championship, Mrs. C. P. Eaton, Jr., of Wellesley and Miss Dorothy Richards are the only first team players who have won four matches. Due to the fact that Miss Richards did not play in one of the medal play tournaments, Mrs. Eaton is leading for individual honors by three points.

Wollaston Strong

After pinning that 15 to 8 defeat on Brae Burn, the Wollaston four ball team is the talk of the league. Russ Todd has done a fine job handling the four ball situation at Wollaston and he will do still better if allowed to make his selections without interference.

See Clark Hodder is arranging starting time for the Boston Four-Ball League for Bert Weed Day when the ten teams will play at Oakley. We do not envy Clark his assignment.

Gene Sarazen and Joe Kirkwood, who will roll into town tomorrow morning, will only stop long enough to pick up Freddie Corcoran before swinging north for Manchester, N. H. After his 36-hole match with Jesse Guilford, Sarazen will return here and start preparations for his Westons and Charles River tussles with Francis Ouimet.

The Boston Retail Trade Board four-ball league will open its season tomorrow afternoon at the Albemarle Golf Club, where Conrad's will play Filene's, Hovey's faces Gilchrist's, White plays Blattery's and the Shepard Stores takes on Jordan's. Sears Roebuck drew a bye.

Tanforan Sued

San Francisco, May 11 (INS)—William Kyne, sportsman, had on file a suit today against John Parchinski, stockholder in Tanforan race track, for $40,000 assertedly due on a personal note for Tanforan stock.

JAQUES BLOCKS JONES 'PLOT' TO GRAB OPEN

New York, May 11 (INS)—Bobby Jones, deposed emperor of the links, may return to the golfing wars again—if he can persuade the United States Golf Association that his pet course, the Augusta National, is the ideal spot for the 1934 national open championship for even for 1935.

Bobby makes no secret of the fact that he is bringing all his powers of persuasion to bear on the officials of the U. S. G. A. to grant him his heart's desire.

Jones is financially interested in the club, of which he is president. He went so far as to visit several of the officials of the national organization "on his own" and lined up Melvin Traylor, H. H. Ramsay and Prescott Bush, but struck a snag in Herbert Jaques, the president, who hails from Boston.

It was then intimated to the former champion that the U. S. G. A. might see things his way if he in turn would agree to compete with a view to raking in the shekels.

Maybe things won't work out that way, but just the same Bobby is in training and looks better than ever. He went on a diet that reduced him 18 pounds in six weeks.

And so it is possible that this ex-champ will once more match his game against the Sarazens and the Hagens and the Armours and the Dutras. But only in August's.

BLACK SECRET TAKES KUJOT

The Black Secret, hooded mat man, is undefeated and still has the fans puzzled as to his identity. His most recent conquest came in the feature bout of Steve Mc Pherson's wrestling show at the Arena, when he pinned Joe Kujot in two straight falls, with Promoter Mc Pherson himself refereeing.

The Black Secret pinned Kujot in 15 05 and in 1 22, to win, but the fans booed the outcome, feeling that Kujot had been "robbed" of the breaks, even though McPherson tried to give him a square deal. John Spellman stopped Pat O'Hara in another feature bout. O'Hara won the first in 11:30, but Spellman took the second in 11:44, and O'Hara was unable to continue.

Bull Martin carried out his threat of tossing Bey Soulayman, the cavalier Turk, three times within half an hour. Martin scored falls over the Turk in 6 31, 10 45 and 25 seconds.

Benny Ginsberg and George Linnehan drew, George Myerson and Chesley Mansfield drew and Bob Russell stopped Jack Walsh in 17 05, in 20 minute bouts. Kewpie Kilroy and Regis Bibi drew; Jim Nash and Fred Moran drew; Barry Lundin threw Dick Perrin in 9:34, and Nick Skiavaras threw Rough-house Murphy in 6 58, in 10-minute bouts.

Carnera Arrives

Lawrence, Canada's Feather Champion

Montreal, May 11 (INS)—Bobby Lawrence, of Toronto, was the new featherweight champion of Canada today. He won the title by knocking out Alan Foxcroft of Vancouver in the fifth round.

Wednesday's Stars

Earl Reynolds, Braves—Made two of Braves' hits off Russell Washburn and batted in two runs in winning rally.

Chuck Klein, Phillies, and Chick Hafey, Reds—Klein hit three homers and batted in seven runs in double-header. Hafey drove three runs with homer that climaxed winning rally in first game.

FERRELL DONS SOX UNIFORM

Special to Boston American

Cleveland, O., May 11—If the Boston Red Sox run true to form, they'll get in the second and final game of their scheduled four-game series with the Indians this afternoon, and win it.

The visitors opened their Western tour in St. Louis, where they lost the first game to the Browns, won the second and then met rain in Chicago, they were washed out two days, took a licking from the White Sox and turned around to whip the Windy City entry.

Showers kept them idle the first two days here. They got going yesterday and lost, 4 to 2. It ought to be their turn to win and even the local series this p. m.

Pitcher Lloyd Brown and Catcher Rick Ferrell secured from the Browns in exchange for Mervyn Shea, report to the Fenway flock in time for today's tilt. Manager Marty McManus announces he will place Ferrell behind the bat to receive the shoots of Paul Andrews, who beat the Browns in his last start.

Racing in New York Stages Comeback

New York, May 11 (AP)—Thoroughbred racing in New York has staged a comeback that augurs well for the future of the sport in the metropolitan area and the East.

The Jamaica meeting which opened last Saturday appears to be holding its own financially. The opening day attendance was approximately 5,000 paid admissions, which put the association on the right side of the ledger to start with.

Jim Bausch Victim of Thug Gang

Kansas City, May 11 (INS)—Jarring Jim Bausch, former football star and world decathlon champion, today was recovering from an imposing list of bumps and bruises inflicted by a gang of thugs in a supposed attempt to rob him.

Among other things Bausch received a swollen jaw, a lump behind the left ear, cut lips and battered face before a police officer rescued him. His assailants grabbed "Jarring Jim," now a vaudeville entertainer, as he was returning from a fraternity party in a taxicab, he said his watch was stolen but his money was untouched, the athlete told police.

EARNSHAW MAY JOIN SOX

REPORT HAS BIG GEORGE ON WAY HERE

There seems, happily, to be no end to the amount of money Owner Tom Yawkey is willing to spend on his newly-acquired Red Sox.

After laying a reported sum of $20,000 on the line along with Marvin Shea, catcher, only two days ago for southpaw Flinger Lloyd Brown and Rick Ferrell, Yawkey has made a cash offer for no less a figure than George Earnshaw, it was learned today.

Earnshaw, Connie Mack's able right-hand hurler, is on his way to the Red Sox in a straight player-cash transaction if negotiations now under way between Yawkey and Connie Mack bear fruit.

More than likely the deal will go through, since Yawkey has the check book which settles every debate without rebuttal.

Why Connie Mack should be willing to let his Earnshaw go to the Red Sox is something of a mystery, except it is recalled that Earnshaw and Mack have had a parting of the ways.

This reported flare-up started when Earnshaw was so outspoken as to say that the Yankees would run away with the pennant race in which Mr. Mack was saying the A's had a very good chance of winning.

This might be considered very thoughtful of Connie Mack, but the fact is that the weather in Philadelphia and in Detroit was practically the same, and there were no reports of Earnshaw's benefitting from his personally conducted Philadelphia workout.

B. U. Reserves Play Clark on Diamond

Boston University's reserves will probably see action again this week when the Terrier nine plays Clark at Worcester. In the Upsala and the United States Naval Training School games Coach John Harmon used his substitutes and they came through in great style.

Diamond Dust

By JOE CASHMAN

The release of Al Wright and Horace Ford in the past 48 hours indicates that the Braves expect to secure another infielder in the very near future. Today, there are only five infielders on the Wigwam roster, including the 40-year-old Marsanville, the young, inexperienced Myseliman and the injured Urbanski. It's virtually certain that Bill McKechnie will not attempt to get by with his present quintet.

Braves Roster Down

Ford's release reduces the Braves' roster to 23, the player limit, which will go into effect next Monday. There'll be no trouble, however, finding room for another new performer or two. Buddy Lake, young hurler, needs minor league experience, and two catchers would be plenty.

The Red Sox find themselves with 26 players as a result of their one-for-two swap with the Browns. Marty McManus must hand the blue slip to three of his charges before next Monday night. A pitcher, an infielder and an outfielder are carded to go.

Western clubs seem not to have heard that the Yankees are supposed to win the American League pennant. Picking up right where the Tigers and Indians left off, the White Sox opened a series against the champions with a 10 to 2 victory.

The Browns climbed over the Fenway flock into seventh place by blanking the Senators. The tilt was a scoreless pitching duel between George Blaeholder and Earl "Lefty" Whitehill until the Browns landed on the veteran southpaw for five runs in the lucky seventh. Rick Ferrall being on his way to join the Red Sox, Muddy Ruel did the St. Louis catching.

Klein Hits 3 Homers

"Chuck" Klein hit three home runs and the Phils dropped deeper into the National League cellar as they suffered defeat in both ends of a doubleheader with the Reds, 10-7 and 4-3. Klein hit his fourth and fifth circuit drives in the first game. Klein's sixth four-bagger of the season was the only one of the nightcap. The victories sent Cincinnati into fourth place with a .500 rating.

The Athletics climbed to the top of the second division of the American League with two triumphs over the Tigers. Rookie "Sugar" Cain led the Macks to a 5-to-3 win in the opener. The second game found the A's pounding Vic Sorrell for 14 hits and winning, 6 to 4, behind the steady pitching of Rube Walberg.

GREEN TO TEST HARVARD TEAM

Although defeated by Harvard at the the indoor triangular meet last March, Dartmouth is figured to give the Crimson track and field men plenty of opposition in the dual encounter in the Stadium on Saturday afternoon.

But Dartmouth will present much greater field event strength than did the Tigers and will fight Harvard for every point in this department. Dartmouth may sweep the high jump with three leapers who can top six feet consistently, while the best Harvard jumper, Scheffy, has done only 5-9 this year.

In the javelin, Coach Hillman has N. W. Nard, a 200-footer, who is practically sure of winning the event.

W. J. Hoofman and R. M. Michelet, Green football stars, and S. F. Hooper are good for many points in the hammer, discus and shot. Ward Donner, another Green gridman, is a consistent 24-foot broad jumper.

Al Hine in the two sprints, Capt. Chapman in the high hurdles, Kahn in the low hurdles, Robert Quimbey in the 400 and 1500 meters, Frank Lepreau in the long run are expected to count for the Indians.

Fish 'n' Game

By WIN BROOKS

For the Fish-of-the-Week Club: A 12-lb., 14-ounce salmon on the Miramichi by C. L. Hauthaway; a 2½-lb. rainbow trout by Mike Moriarty at Red Brook pond; a 2-lb. rainbow by W. C. Moulton at the Sharon Club pond; a 2-lb., 2-ounce squaretail at Peters pond, Sandwich, by Amory Barton; a 6-lb. salmon at Sebec, by Nat Fuller.

Of Hauthaway, Moriarty and Moulton, a few interesting notes. Clarence Hauthaway is just back from three days of glorious salmon fishing at Jack Russell's camps on the Miramichi in New Brunswick. He report a heavy run of salmon and grilse. In three days of fishing—and not three full days at that—31 salmon and grilse fell to Hauthaway's rod.

The largest was the bright salmon noted above. A majority of the fish fell victim not only to Hauthaway's fine casting, but to his fly-tying as well, for some of them were taken on a Yellow Peril fly, tied by himself on No. 2 hook. Except for one day, when water conditions made the heavier, two-handed rod advisable, he used the single-handed salmon rod.

A Compleat Angler

Mike Moriarty, at the age of 6", makes his own rods, his own flies and his own wine. And he is a distance and accurate caster of tournament fame. Gray-haired, bright-eyed, hale and hearty, he has been a lover of angling since boyhood, a credit always to "gentlemen who fish."

* * *

Moulton coined the phrase, "Fish and Forget." His Sharon pharmacy is the winter stove league headquarters for Norfolk County sportsmen, withal he himself is often too busy to preside. A stocky, pleasant man, whose greatest sport is catching trout, although he keeps few brought to net. Many he gives away; many he returns alive for another day.

He possesses more nightmares of the fly-tying art than any angler living; one that is a combination of billy-goat whiskers and crowwing, tied with red twine in the size of a human hand, he will solemnly assure you was the fly he took the big one on" only yesterday.

Snake Likes Trade

Firs Chief Arthur Spring, of Lacconia, N. H., is telling it and I wouldn't interrupt him:

"This feilah was pickerel fishin' and he ran out of bait. Plenty in the bottle, understand, but his frogs were all gone. Well, sir, the fish were bitin' pretty good and he didn't know what he was going to do about it till he saw a black snake just about to swaller a frog. He ups and grabs the snake, removes the frog from its mouth.

"'I'll swap you some o' my bait for yours,' says he, and pours a good stiff drink down the snake's gullet. Well, sir, that serpent black bottomed off through the marsh and my friend caught a good pickerel on the frog. He was just wonderin' what he was goin' to do about more bait when he feels tappin' at his foot. He looks down and there's the same dang snake with another frog in its mouth, ready for another trade."

CATHOLIC UNION FETE TONIGHT

Playoffs Planned for Twi League

The Boston Twilight League managers have adopted the hockey system for their playoffs, using two halves to match the teams at the end of the season. The halves will end on July 1 and August 19.

Two games will be played tonight, at the West Newton Commonwealth Bill Reilly's Newton team and the new James H. Sheridan Club of Watertown, and the other at Lowell between the C. M. A. C. team and Waltham. 1932 champions.

JIMMY DURANTE ON AIR

By N. F. T.

Listeners who like Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante and his self-styled brand of buffoonery, should swing the dials toward the weekly Rudy Vallee radio hour tonight (WEEI) at 8 o'clock, where the man who won fame by a nose is to take one of his few and far between broadcasting turns.

* * *

Also on the above program, looms the name of Ethel Waters, talented, dusky damsel, who has started Harlem hips swaying with her inimitable hot-cha interpretation of the new blues song 'Stormy Weather' as sung behind New York Cotton Club walls.

* * *

Then for dramatic doings, Rudy introduces an old screen favorite in the person of Montagu Love, playing a part in the special studio sketch based on the life and death of Rasputin. All of which would indicate the well known Mr. Vallee has in mind to again score sharply and further strengthen his position as a network showman extraordinary.

That column bit by our good pal "Aircaster" yesterday, the one having to do with a real "racket" being made out of fan mail volume in New York lately, brings to mind the unique trap set by "mike" moguls not so long ago. And how it worked! A certain personality was suspicioned of promoting much favorable fan mail from various sections. On the morning following one of said performer's vocal programs, bountiful bushels of mail came along. Practically all of it was, of course, praiseworthy. However, the wary sludin bosses had arranged for the entire offering to pass into a dead sound box the night before. Not a note of it went on the waves.

Radio Chiefs Watch Canada

By AIRCASTER

New York, May 11—American radio executives are cupping curious ears in the direction of Canada, where a somewhat aesthetic radio commission is doing a bit of housecleaning. The gents on this side of the border are interested in finding out whether the newest restrictions and regulations pertaining to the commercial phases of radio are going to be good for the stations and bad for the listener, or vice versa. At first blush, it appears that the listener is the lucky party, for he's to be spared, among other things, a lot of empty, greedy wordage, overdoses of advertising, inaccurate, interpretations of news, and assured a maximum of entertainment. By the same token, the stations are to be deprived of advertising latitude, and therefore revenue, and perhaps the profitable patronage of many American clients.

The Canadian Commission is in a dictatorial position and believes it is leading the way for America in the matter of refinements in reforms. It began its new lease of authority recently by limiting all advertising ballyhoos to 5 per cent of each broadcast period.

Now, it has announced that no spot advertising, such as the current time from a watch company bus schedules, etc., shall go on the air between 7:30 and 11 p. m. Such spot ballyhoos are permitted only 100 words during the day. No Canadian station henceforth may broadcast news unless by arrangement with local newspapers—the news to be interpreted by the publication, and not by the station. No mere mentioning of headlines or briefs of stolen news will be permitted. It seems the Canadian press have signed a treaty—an eventuality that must develop sooner or later in America, since Canada seems to be lengths ahead of America in its refinement program. There's no wonder that the American broadcasters are deeply interested in the effect.

THE EXJERT PAYS. Stories about the Kentucky Derby are still being told as the enthusiasts return from Churchill Downs. Yesterday's anecdote concerned the inexperience of Clem McCarthy, the man who knows how to call their first names. Before he left the Kentucky broadcast, John Royal, WEAF-WJZ vice-president, gave Clem a fistful of sawbucks to bet on Broker's Tip, the steed which won the race. But when McCarthy got on the ground, he figured Broker's Tip would be out of the money, so he placed the Royal bet on another mount, expecting he would save the program expert a heavy loss.

Yesterday a crestfallen Clem visited Royal and gave him back his original money, plus four times that amount—out of the McCarthy pocket. Royal is thinking about broadcasting, as an expert, the next track event.

UNORDAINED CRITICS — In recent weeks, the radio chains have noted a critical tendency among listeners scattered over wide areas. In the interests of accuracy, or what they believes to be accuracy, many listeners don't hesitate to spend their money on long-distance calls, telegrams and postage, just so long as they can have their say about the diction of announcers and actors. In one week, the telephone switchboards have tolalled more than a hundred audience protests on the pronunciation of the President's name when spoken by the official announced as "Rose-velt" by special request of the Chief Executive. One woman in Tennessee called a local station to complain about the announcer's way of pronouncing "gondola." The microphoneer gave emphasis, quite properly, to the first syllable.

"WRONG," the woman cried. "It should be pronounced with emphasis on the second syllable. I have an old song here with the word in it, and at the end of the verse, is the word 'ravioli.' Therefore, the woman in Tennessee should rhyme with 'ravioli.'"

WHAT! NO CHALLENGES?—B. A. Rolfe is a disappointed man. he had hoped to be deluged with challenges by this time, after Saturday night's musical race—but nobody has stepped up to offer to beat a speed record established by the recent broadcast, when "Dizzy Fingers" went to the post. Rolfe staged the race among his own musicians, starting with Jack Sw'shking to the xylophone, then to the accordion, and finally to the saxophone. At the rehearsal 59,123 notes were played in two minutes and five seconds. At the broadcasts the conters beat their own time by doing the 59,123 notes in a minute and 55 seconds.

OFF THE TICKER—Beginning Sunday evening next, the New York Opera Association will present a new series at WOR, the hour being 10 p. m. . . . Daily True Story

Protecting Christopher

ACROSS THE table Christopher watched Stella. She was an intoxicating sight. He had brought her out to Wynngate with the idea of asking her to marry him. Or really it was Stella who had paved the way.

They had intended to go to the Reta hop, but when he had called for her at her home, she had come limping toward him in a new evening gown with accessories of that particular sort of combination which only a girl like Stella could manage successfully; a lemon yellow dress, geranium red lace coat, and a piquant little sea green taffeta muff.

"Isn't it just too crazy," she laughed. "I was riding Napoleon this afternoon and I twisted my ankle when I slid out of the saddle. Really, Christopher, I can't dance. Perhaps you'd better go on without me. I shouldn't want you to miss a nice evening on my account."

For a fraction of a second, Christopher thought she was joking with her and since she was certainly dressed to go somewhere. Then he felt a small hand squeeze through the crook of his elbow, and heard the alluring croon of her voice again.

"I shouldn't want you to miss a nice evening on my account," Christopher blushed. His face had closed about the small arm on his sleeve. "You know I wouldn't have a good time without you," he reproved.

STELLA LAUGHED

Stella laughed and said in a husky voice, "How you do talk!"

Christopher said, "We'll take it a good night club. How's that?"

"Perfect," crooned Stella.

And so they went to Wynngate, and Christopher was wondering just how to say what he wanted to say to Stella. You must know by this time that I love you, darling," would (the thought) sound prosaic.

Christopher started at the sound of her voice. "Why, that's right," he told her.

"I suppose you have friends there who will show you a gay time tomorrow night."

"Hotsie Stella, I haven't a friend there I care a snap of my fingers about."

Stella lowered her eyes and smiled. "If I had known that, I should have asked you to call on a friend of mine."

Christopher said, "Why didn't you? I would have been glad to do that, dear, while you let me know I would!"

Stella said, "It's not too late even yet. I might wire her."

"Is she married or single," asked Christopher.

"Tell her I'll take her out to dinner and good shows."

"Her name is Mary Templeton. Isn't it enough for you to know that she is a friend of mine?"

As the taxi bore Christopher to Miss Templeton's apartment in New York, Christopher thought of Stella—how different she was from most girls.

The trailer towed Christopher in' a labyrinth of elegantly furnished rooms. An old woman with a black lace hanging about her shoulders and a cane in her hand appeared before Christopher.

"Well, and what a nice young man to come to see an old lady like me," she rasped, "and how thoughtful of Stella to send you. Sit down."

Christopher tried to camouflage his surprise with dismay. "You're Miss Mary Templeton?" he asked weakly. The old lady nodded. "What the dickens?" thought Templeton. "What the dickens was Stella trying to do to me? Was this a joke or had she been trying to make his evening in New York a safe one. Well, at the suite trick for a girl to play on a fellow." A cyclone of rage was gathering within Christopher.

HE MEETS MARY

"I never go out at night," the old lady told him, "but my brother's granddaughter is visiting me from California. She's Mary Templeton, too, my namesake. I don't think Stella ever knew Mary. You must stay here and have dinner with us. Oh, Mary!" she called over one shoulder.

A week later, Stella, who had been greatly surprised and dismayed at Christopher's visiting each mail, and simply camping beside the phone, received a telegram which read:

"Indebted to you for life STOP Staying in New York indefinitely STOP Mary Templeton and I are engaged to be married.

"CHRISTOPHER."

Thompson on Radio at Arboretum Club

Newcomb F. Thompson, Boston Evening American radio editor and radio voice of the Honest-Weight-tone News will be a special guest of the Arboretum Club at its annual "Gentleman's Night" tomorrow in Catholic Union Hall.

In addition to broadcasting the regular news flashes Thompson will broadcast the highlights of the party. Mrs. Joseph Rowell of Jamaica Plain is chairman in charge of the affair, assisted by Mrs. William B. McNulty, president of the club.

MORSE PATRONS CIRCUS GUESTS

When the circus band blares into its crash-tah-tah-tah for the first act on Saturday night, many men and boys, as guests of Leopold Morse Co., will thrill at the sights of the greatest show on earth.

It all came about be such a part of a unique idea carried out by this progressive furniture institution, which celebrated "Circus Week" simultaneously with the appearance of the show in Boston. Patrons of the Summer st. and Adams sq. store during this week were invited to attend the Saturday night party, as appreciation for their purchases.

The gay spirit of the big top was carried out by bolt stores with window decorations of clowns, circus posters and other carnival effects.

All Set With Kitchen

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Just heard Mr. Roosevelt is so busy he hasn't seen all the White House rooms and grounds.

Having explored it thoroughly during the Taft administration we will explain the layout to Franklin D.:

There is the famous telephone booth that once leaked but is now stuffed with chewing gum and cigarette papers.

The conference room. The walls have ears and the keyholes have eyes.

The east lawn on which the eggs are rolled down. Some tough eggs have the habit of rolling back again.

We don't know a thing about the cellar and the attic, although we would be perfectly at home in either one.

Etiquette of Introductions.

STREET INTRODUCTION.

(Today we turn to Gaskell's Compendium of Social Forms (1880), for a few timely hints on perfect behavior.

WHEN introducing people to each other, great care must be shown that you are not promoting an acquaintance that is irksome to each. Always introduce the younger, or socially inferior, to the elder, or superior. Never introduce a lady to a gentleman, but introduce the gentleman to the lady, thus.

Bow, smile and say in modulated tones, "Miss Gilfailen, allow me to present Mr. Snodgrass; Mr. Snodgrass meet Miss Gilfailen."

Etiquette requires polite salutations even though you are being introduced to your bitterest enemy.

Such exclamations as "Wigates" or "Put 'er there" are decidedly vulgar, and will be avoided as a plague by gentlefolk.

Tax Hunters' Problem

A Plan to Avoid Added Burdens

The State of Massachusetts is making a search for new taxes in order to compensate the cities and towns for their extraordinary burdens of public welfare relief the past three years.

The revenue seems to be necessary. It has been found impossible to effect economies that will offset greatly reduced tax revenues and the great demand for unemployment relief.

In the city of Boston, as an example, the public welfare expenditures have risen from $2,000,000 a year to $12,000,000 a year. This is typical of the conditions which exist in most of our municipalities.

Real estate is bearing a killing burden of high taxes and has reached the saturation point. The financial integrity of the cities and towns must be maintained. Surely the payless weeks, one after another, have forced enough hardship upon the city employes and their dependent families.

This unusual and distressing situation must be met, and in order to approach it from the safest and soundest foundation, the Boston Evening American has suggested this program:

1—The State of Massachusetts should make application to the national government for the $15,000,000 or $20,000,000 which will be its share under the Costigan-LaFollette public relief act.

2—The State of Massachusetts, with credit unimpaired, should borrow $30,000,000 on its bonds and loan the money to the cities and towns now in financial distress at low rates of interest and on easy and convenient terms of repayment.

3—The cities and towns should in turn be compelled to abandon all unnecessary and extravagant programs and to install drastic economies.

If this program is still insufficient to tide over the cities and towns in their emergency and to maintain their financial standing and to relieve the real estate owners from further burdens, Governor Ely and the Legislature should agree upon some new form of taxation that will be fair to all, that will be the least irritating and the least burdensome.

There is a good deal of merit to the proposal to lay a tax upon the intangible wealth that is the income from Massachusetts corporations. The holders of these securities have for many years escaped the payment of a State tax on their dividends while the State has been slugging away at the income earned by wage-earners and professional men as the fruit of their labors.

Then, of course, there is the sales tax.

In all the history of taxation, anywhere in the world, no system has ever been devised that is less annoying and which is easier and more convenient to pay than a national manufacturers' sales tax.

Congress has failed to provide national relief through a general manufacturers' sales tax. So a State sales tax may become necessary.

A sales tax, levied at the same rate upon all products, would remove the discriminations which are now practiced upon certain articles subjected to nuisance taxes. Moreover, the sales tax should have a slight but favorable influence upon the prices of basic commodities paid by the consumers, and, as every economist realizes, these prices must improve if we are to have general employment and general prosperity.

The States of this country which have established the sales tax have had a satisfactory experience with it. If the sales tax is agreed upon by Governor Ely and the Legislature it should be retained only until the day when the Congress at Washington has sufficient intelligence to enact the general manufacturers' sales tax.

More Charity Chiselers

Another Welfare Probe Needed

Mayor Curley has ordered another investigation of the public welfare lists. This one ought to remove the last of the remaining chiselers.

There are some 10,000 persons receiving public welfare aid whose names do not appear in the recent police list, the voting list or the city directory.

It is true, of course, that many people have changed their places of living because of the economic conditions, but it seems rather singular indeed that as many as 10,000 persons receiving public aid could escape the three lists that identify the residents of Boston.

In the early days of the depression, when the times were very distressing, the city of Boston adopted the very humane policy of feeding and clothing the people first and of verifying their right to aid later.

But these times are behind us. Certainly there can be no reasonable excuse for spreading charity to professional panhandlers and interlopers who may have flocked into Boston because of this city's reputation for generosity.

He'll Make Good Judge

The appointment of John E. Swift to be a Judge of the Superior Court of Massachusetts ought to be received with universal approval. Mr. Swift is no stranger to us. He is, in fact, very well known to the people of this State as a candidate for public office and as executive of a splendid fraternal organization, the Knights of Columbus. Mr. Swift is a good man, rich in experience and in kindly impulses.

New York Day by Day

Midnight Haven

NEW YORK, May 11—One of the midnight havens kinked in the Broadway roar is a tiny chili parlor, bright with red trimmings and stuffed with the simple conviviality of a Chaucerian era. From after theater until 2 a. m. it is in genial pandemonium, with more diverse celebrities than any other spot in town.

O. O. McIntyre

Among signatures on its guest register are Paul Whiteman, Robert Sherwood, William Gaxton, Meredith Nicholson, Joe Cook, Harold Ross, Ogden Nash, Arthur Hopkins and other topnotchers in various fields. In the least anticipated place, more confidences are exchanged than at the clubs.

* * *

The cafe is conducted by Mrs. Lee, a buxom matron, and her comely daughter, Dorothea. The service is leisurely but the frijoles, enciladas and tamales are worth waiting for. The wandering drunk finds all tables reserved. Two Broadway hit plays, three novels and a] jigsaw puzzle revival incubated there.

Over pannikans of steaming chili are the moods and dolors once so familiar among the well polished benches of the old-time rathskeller. A gentleman last evening was discussing Boccaccio. A departing star tucked a pat of hamburger in her purse for her Fake. Broadway, around the corner, seemed far away.

* * *

The best known chili parlor of another generation was, of course, Joe's, shouldering the Metropolitan opera. While such intellectuals as Ben DeCasseres, Edwin Markham and Carlos Fornaro were frequenters it had a rake-hell glamour. Jetsam madams, twitching hop-heads and gristle-hearted panderers of the Broadway night drifted in. The last time I saw Joel Rinaldo, incidentally, he was rocking on the porch of a sequestered Brooklyn home reading Wordsworth, of all people.

* * *

But it was at Lorber's when I was newly pupped on Broadway I got my first peep at culture—or so it seemed. Lamb chops were served with red and white paper panties slipped over the ends. Here I also made virgin experiment in sipping cointreau. The two so emboldened me I breezed over to a corner table where Caruso was dining and asked for his autograph. It was given with a graciousness I never forgot.

Three stars—Lynne Fontanne, Blanche Bates and Holbrook Blinn—at various times tried to induce Buff Cobb Brody to join theatrical companies, but failed. Another daughter of a writing family, Florence Rice, had innumerable offers before she consented to appear in a play by her dad's crony, Ring Lardner. Such reflections being inspired in an observation of Hugh Walpole: "Children of writers shrink from the theater. They have lived too much in an atmosphere of illusion."

But Owen Davis solves the parental problem of knowing where a modern son is six night a week. He writes a part for him in his plays. Thus the son is happy, the father is happy, and both are paid for it. An achievement, my masters, to be happy and get paid for it these days!

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

When the Barriers Thin

LIFE—a strange business!

What's it all about? Why'd we come? Where do we go from here?

How often you've asked those questions! Have you ever really stopped asking them, in the deep places of your heart? For what is life worth unless you can answer them? A little careless love and laughter when we're young—and then the strange, bewildered years of struggle. What's it for, unless there's more than this?

No answer.

Yet still, you feel so sure there is an answer! Why?

Why do we know, even as we watch our bodies crumble, that we, ourselves, shall never crumble—that we shall go on and on, vaulting with young feet over our cradles and graves?

Elsie Robinson

And sometimes there comes a Flash, quick and clear, when, for an instant, you seem to see—what? Afterwards, you cannot tell what; but for one timeless moment the curtain lifts, the darkness clears—and there before you lies the road you've always known, shining from star to star!

And life has a new meaning, a new possibility. You begin looking and listening, peering into the eyes of strangers, probing into their words—searching for proof.

And finding it, perhaps, in some lovely passage like this from that great, hot, striding book, "Pageant"—G. B. Lancaster's book on Tasmania's prison colony days. Horrible. Beautiful. Pageant of Empire. Yet, strangely, almost shockingly, the pageant of your own soul—your secret kisses and killings; your hidden prayers!

How did anyone know of all that? Or of this? This flash, which came to you, standing by your mother's grave—which came to Jenny Comyn standing by the grave of her love. But what does any grave matter, if the road goes on! Listen!

"As she stood among the glowing tulips, there came to her one of those familiar moments when barriers thinned; when behind the barriers she felt that mysterious life, caught that sharp liesting certainty of the ultimate meaning of this strain and confusion called Living. Very still, hardly breathing, she knew you must keep then, or you frightened it, the spirit thing, so that it eluded you and was gone.

"Very still—and it came, the spirit thing, so serenely vast and live and certain that you felt your own little spark leap up in recognizing joy. Lives—such formless, brittle handfuls of nothing lives were squeezed into such cranky, unmeaning shapes. Squeezed until the pith was out of them and the great Hand opened and dropped them again to earth. Squeezed—Yes, but the pith, the essential drop distilled when the great Hand squeezed. That remained. That was what lived behind the barrier.

"For one of those rare, tremendous moments which had stayed her all her life, Jenny grasped those beckoning hands behind the thinned barriers; saw their lit eyes, their sick-blown like comets; heard their glorious trumpets, their triumphing laughter.

Very still—

Oh, if we could only keep still enough; hush our noisy questioning; silence the complacent cackle of our conceit, and wait—and then—

Suddenly, the Flash!

But that is enough. Just to know that this isn't all; that the trail does go on; that there, around the turn, laughing in the golden sunlight they are waiting for us all—that is enough!

Be very still! very still!

Hush!

Wait!

It will come!

Just Folks

The Toiler

He was dirty. That was plain.
On his hands were grease and grim
Common toil had left its stain,
Not as deep or black as crime.
And I followed just behind,
Little guessing what I'd find,
Little dreaming I should hear
Shouts of welcome, loud and clear;
Little thinking I should see
'Round his porch white shrubbery
And a window box of flowers
Just as red and gay as ours.
He was weary. That I knew.
All the long day he had toiled
At the task he had to do,
Which had left him sadly soiled.
And I saw him homeward turn
Little guessing what I'd learn,
For a grass plot green and trim
Seemed with joy to welcome him.
Lovely blossoming peonies swayed
Where his little children played,
And a garden bed was gay
With the colorings of May.
What are grease and dirt and oil
And the weariness man sees
Born of everlasting toil
But the purchase price of these?
Window panes with curtains white
And a happy home at night;
Shrubs to blossom in the spring,
Rooms where childish voices ring;
Dreams translated into peace
When the whirring turbines cease
And the things mankind loves best
When the nighttime brings us rest.

THIS IS LIFE

Beauty Fades in Artist's Work When Propaganda Steps In

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS

I suppose there will be plenty of people to protest that the fact that Mr. Rockefeller has dismissed Diego Rivera, Mexican mural painter, and forbidden him to finish his mural painting for the Rockefeller Center is an outrage on the fair name of art, an insult to the artist's genius for self-expression, as well as another nail in the coffin of liberalism, art, and civilization.

R. E. ROGERS

Something tells me that the New York Nation will presently be fulminating in that vein. I shouldn't be surprised to see something signed by Heywood Broun to that effect. And—a difference in degee if not of kind—the outspoken Leftward, published by our local John Reed Club, may drop its worry about Edith Berkman long enough to toss off a bitter editorial or a piece of slightly halting verse. But Boston, I fear, will remain calm, just as it did when that extraordinary piece of modernism, Pieta, as fine a piece of distortion and brutality as these old eyes ever beheld, was removed swiftly and silently from the Art Museum.

Various comments present themselves. One is that it serves Rockefeller Center right for hiring a furriner to do what an American mural painter could do equally well. Mr. Rivera was one of three aliens, the other two being a Spaniard and an Englishman, who were invited to contribute what was to be the chef d'oeuvre of New York's gaudiest white elephant. Unfortunately for that point of view, one Thomas Craven in a recent magazine article made a critical survey of the murals actually contributed by American artists to Rockefeller Center and came to the conclusion that they were, one and all, lousy. It would be better, perhaps, to take another tack.

Ability Skidded When Cash Rolled In

The trouble is not, obviously, with Mr. Rivera's painting ability. His Mexican murals are rather famous. He has been considered the white hope of proletarian radicalism, so far as art is concerned. True, many of the comrades have professed publicly to believe that since he lowered himself to take the tainted money of a capitalist, his art has begun to skid. But now that he has actually been bounced for being too proletarian, his painting will probably be considered all right. It should be said, in fairness to everyone concerned, that the Rockefeller Center interests have paid him in full for an uncompleted mural. So he takes the cash and the credit, too, something which old Omar Khayyam didn't believe could be done.

It is averred that the Rockefellers approved the first sketch. Now they object to the work in hand. One can only suspect that Mr. Rivera may have slipped in something. That figure of Lenin, perhaps. It may not have been so recognizably the painted Vladimir Ilyich Ulyanov in the preliminary draught. Perhaps the red flags were not there. Perhaps the first sketch was in black and white, a medium in which a red flag looks much like any other flag. Anyway, Mr. Rivera has shown his hand, the serpent of Communism has reared its ugly head, the painter is sticking to his guns—oh, any other figures of speech you can think of!

I suppose that in the Perfect State—or even in Don Marquis's Almost Perfect State—every painter with a union card, whether competent or not, would be given an allotted number of square feet of plastered wall and allowed to spoil it in his own way. Painting being, according to the best modern definitions, the spontaneous flowering of untrammeled self-expression, without dictation of patron or comprehension of public, such a method is obviously the only way to go about obtaining masterpieces for posterity.

Strict Orders Responsible for Great Art Era

But I have a notion that the universal modern acceptance of this motion is one of the reasons for the quite startling decline of art in the world today. The two great ages of art, the Athenian and the Italianprimitive-renascence, were ages in which a sculptor or painter was given a commission by a patron and executed it to the best of his ability, subject to strict orders as to what it should be about and how it should be treated.

The Athenian democracy was a jealous patron. Phidias, for instance, was jailed and nearly executed for blasphemy, that is, for running counter to the conventions laid down and accepted for civic and religious art. And I suspect that any painter of any century from 1400 to 1700 who didn't do as he was told was likely to find himself out of a job and perhaps worse. That is why those were the great ages of art. The artist was an employed craftsman doing a job according to specifications, and there was little or no nonsense about self-expression. Of course, Benvenuto Cellini always rowed with his patrons, but that was usually about money or political competition or police matters.

Mr. Rivera makes a great point of asserting that he is the only critical literature about Marxism and the creative instinct. All pressive of his convictions. As if that mattered a hoot! We are hearing a good deal of the theory that there is such a thing as Marxist literature or art. We are being pestered with a critical literature about Marxism an dthe creative instinct. All of which is so much poppy-cock. All literature written in terms of formulas is bad literature. And most literature claimed as being in accord with certain formulas usually turns out later to be accidental or spurious.

Beauty Suffers When Propaganda Steps In

I doubt if even the fathers of the church would insist that all the good primitives who painted such delicious tripychs and altar pieces, Nativities and Miracles and Pietas, were absolutely sound in the faith. Robert Browning knew better. One of his finest poems tells of one Fra Lippo Lippi, most modern of the primitives, who used to skin out of his monastery at night to go on parties with pretty ladies. He would return, refreshed and happy, to paint such lovely and truthful sacred scenes that the ignorant populace would go crazy over them, in spite of the sour looks of the critics and clerics who suspected his morals and doubted his technique.

The artist's business, it is usually considered, is to create beauty. And if propaganda gets in his way, the chances are that beauty is likely to suffer. It may be that we are undervaluing the Rockefeller aesthetic sense. It may be that the reported objection to Lenin and the red flags and the dead soldiers is just so much camouflage. It may be that at bottom John D., Jr., was violently nauseated, not by the propaganda, but by the lack of beauty in Mr. Rivera's effort. Mr. Rivera apparently wishes to see the world as a communistic Mexican peon might see it. I am guessing from such reproductions of his work I have viewed.
